Die First To Answer K's Blast

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker flies to New York late today to deliver the West's first major reply to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and meet with President Eisenhower and Premier Harold Macmillan.

The Canadian leader will address the star-studded United Nations General Assembly Monday, the first speech by a Western head of government following Khrushchev's attack on the UN administration.

Tuesday he will meet with both Eisenhower and Macmillan.

A spokesman added that Diefenbaker also would see several other world leaders. He indicated Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana would be among those on whom he would call.

It seemed certain the Canadian leader, like other Western executives, would ignore Khrushchev.

He spent most of the day working on his UN speech in his Parliament Hill office. He devoted more than 12 hours Friday to the address, which he is said to consider one of the most important of his career.

EAGER TO ANSWER
Monday's speech will be his second before the world forum. In his previous appearance in September, 1957, he offered to open Canada's Arctic regions to reciprocal inspection against surprise attack, an offer he is expected to renew this time.

Sources indicated the prime minister was eager to answer the Khrushchev speech. They also hinted that he had no "bombshell" to deliver. But would concentrate on a plea to the Soviet Union to resume the Geneva disarmament talks, possibly under a neutral chairman.

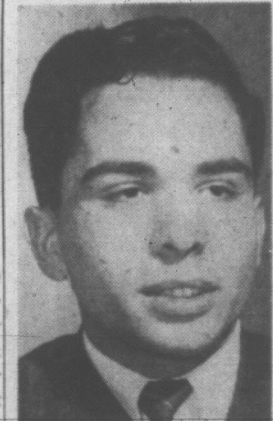

Diefenbaker will share Monday's spotlight with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro who is reported ready to speak for four hours. He will follow the Canadian leader to the Assembly podium.

Cuba Gives Recognition To Red China

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba announced today the establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist China and North Korea.

The announcement came after a cabinet session in which Prime Minister Fidel Castro participated by long-distance telephone from New York, where he is attending the United Nations General Assembly.

Cuba is the first nation in the western hemisphere to recognize Red China. Castro previously had signed a trade pact with Peking.

The Castro regime also voted into law a commercial agreement with Yugoslavia.

Castro's swing toward closer relations with the Communist bloc began last May when he re-established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, which had been broken off during the regime of Fulgencio Batista. At that time he also raised the Czechoslovak legation to the higher rank of embassy.

The cabinet decreed recognition of Peking regime during a marathon session that ended early today.

Fear Move Aimed At Destruction Of World Group

By JOSEPH MacSWEENEY

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Western diplomats speculated today on whether Soviet Premier Khrushchev's appetite for power in Africa will cause him to tear out the heart of the United Nations Organization.

United States, British and Canadian leaders all struck the same note: It appeared Khrushchev was trying to destroy the UN when he ripped into it Friday in a speech keyed for the ears of emerging and underdeveloped countries.

Khrushchev brought deep gloom to the UN when he said that UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld had been the tool of western countries by his actions in the Congo crisis.

Ambassador James Wadsworth said "the crisis consists of an attempt to destroy the office and the very structure of the secretary-general and the secretariat, and through it, to destroy the United Nations."

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter hopes Khrushchev will push his United Nations revamping proposals to a showdown, it was learned, because he is confident the Soviet premier will meet with a stinging defeat if he does.

Khrushchev implied that Hammarskjöld should be fired and he went much further by stating that the secretary-general's post should be abolished.

It should be replaced, he said, by a three-man executive drawn from the three sectors into which he divided the world—the West, the Communist bloc and neutralist states.

He proposed that the UN headquarters be moved from New York.

Plan Seen to Win Control of Africa

Diplomats saw deep significance in that Khrushchev devoted one-third of his ponderous 18,000-word address to a denunciation of colonialism, causing Western spokesmen to retort that Russia is the greatest imperialist power in the world today—perhaps in history.

His call for a quick burial of all things colonial was regarded as clear notice of his hopes of winning Africa—which has placed 13 new members in the 96-member UN—to Communist influence.

Some sources felt Khrushchev was trying mainly to needle the U.S. when he said:

"The question arises of whether or not thought should be given to the choice of another locale for the United Nations headquarters... Switzerland or Austria might be such a place, for example... I can declare in all responsibility that if it should be considered expedient to house the United Nations headquarters in the Soviet Union, we guarantee the best possible conditions for its work."

Spy Plane Case To Be Aired

In other developments Friday:

1. The assembly's steering committee voted for a new debate by the assembly on the U.S. U-2 spy plane and RB-47 plane incidents. The U.S. did not oppose the discussion although it said the Soviet allegations were false; voted for debate on the Hungarian oppression of 1956. Twelve countries, including Canada, were for the debate, four against and there were four abstentions.

armament expert, told correspondents they could find nothing significantly new in Khrushchev's disarmament proposals.

The foreign chief declared: "I was very much disappointed in Mr. Khrushchev's speech because it was utterly destructive, particularly unfortunate after the helpful speech made by President Eisenhower."

"His accusations about the 10-nation disarmament committee, in which Canada took part, were ridiculous, because the Eastern five walked out without even listening to new U.S. proposals."

"I think the best thing now would be if non-nuclear UN members made it clear in the assembly that negotiations on disarmament must resume and resume quickly."

"I was very disappointed, but I wouldn't be surprised if he overplayed his hand again. I felt his attack on Hammarskjöld and the secretariat was the most destructive part of his speech. It made me wonder whether he was out to destroy the UN."

"It would be a tragedy for humanity if he did. I don't think he will... The UN is

OFFICE CHAIR ORDERS IRK GIRLS

'I'll Sit as I Please'

LONDON (AP)—A British government department this week got around to replacing 1,068 old-fashioned office chairs, some of them dating back to the reign of Queen Victoria.

Victoria died in 1901, but the chairs lived on. Their replacement has started a row. In issuing the new chairs to the London headquarters of the Post Office Savings Bank, an official also issued sitting instructions to the girls who use them.

Stressed were two golden rules for the chairborne:

Never cross your legs and keep both feet together on the floor.

Never rest your elbows on the table before you.

"We've never heard of such piffing stupidity," snapped one of the girls to reporters. "Gross impertinence," said William Davies, an official of the union to which the girls belong.

"What difference does it make if you cross your legs?" asked another girl. "I will sit as I please."

BREAKING POINT NEAR FOR LAOS, THAILAND

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Laos' strained diplomatic relations with neighboring Thailand were near the breaking point today.

Thailand called home its ambassador after a Thai Embassy official was expelled over alleged support for the rebels.

Rebels wishing to oust the neutralist government of Premier Souvanna Phouma have been shelling Vientiane and its outskirts intermittently for the last two weeks.

Laos government sources said Thai Embassy counsellor Reng Khorphorn was arrested when he was caught on the Laos-Thailand border Wednesday night with important military information, including details of Vientiane's defences and suggestions for possible attack.

everything to the new nations."

Asked about a suggestion in a British newspaper that Canada — specifically Quebec — would be a good site for the UN, Green said:

"While it would be nice to have the UN in Quebec, to start talking of moving it now is very destructive."

British and U.S. spokesmen both used the term "declaration of war against the UN" about Khrushchev's speech.

As for the proposal for reorganizing the office of the secretary-general by weakening and diluting it, this represents a confession that a strong and effective UN mechanism is incompatible with Soviet ambitions.

Regarding colonialism, the spokesman said that "quite apart from his unwarranted attack on Belgian 'aggressors' ... Khrushchev's remarks were little more than mere repetition of those trite and obsolete slogans with which the Communists have drugged themselves and their audiences for years."

All three major U.S. television networks stopped televising Khrushchev's speech before he had finished Friday. The networks, exercising their editorial prerogative, said the two-hour-and-20-minute speech contained nothing new or startling and that the public interest would not have been served by putting the entire speech on the air.

Bindoff formed the squadron about eight weeks ago. It was his first major command. His successor as squadron commander has not been named.

Plywood Prices Up

The era of rock-bottom plywood prices in B.C. has ended. Plywood Manufacturers' Association of B.C. Friday announced the wholesale price of plywood is increased as much as 8 per cent, effective immediately.

The increase is the first since September, 1959.

Plywood prices plummeted in the last 12 months in the Pacific Northwest. A severe cutback in housing was the main reason. Mills in Washington, Oregon and B.C. either closed or drastically reduced production resulting in layoffs or short work weeks for thousands of employees.

Prices fell from $4.64 to $3.52 for quarter-inch sanded plywood and from $3.16 to $2.28 for sheathing plywood.

Increased consumption and lowering of inventories were the reasons cited by manufacturers to building supply firms for the price boost.

New price lists issued Friday call for an 8 per cent boost in the price of sanded plywood. Sheathing plywood prices have been hiked by 6 per cent.

Federal Help Sought In Montreal Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Federal government conciliation was appealed for today to regulate Montreal's first dockworkers' strike.

It called Mr. Lelievre a trouble-maker and said that two months ago, after he made unacceptable demands on a crew working under him, the crew walked off the ship.

William J. Brown, president of the firm, said Lelievre is a fine and sober man and the company had no intention of relieving him under any circumstances.

All 3,000 men working on deep-sea ships left their jobs, leaving 31 freighters unattended.

A smaller ILA local working on coastal freighters and a union of steamship checkers were believed ready to call a series of "general meetings" today to discuss the situation—in effect, to join the walkout.

Friday night, a squad of 50 National Harbor Board and Montreal city police scuffled with a group of 70 longshoremen trying to prevent the docking of the Norwegian freighter Suncliff.

SHIP DOCKS UNAIDED

Police quelled the disorder within minutes and the men, seeing the freighter dock without shore aid, moved off down the harbor.

The Shipping Federation of Canada, which negotiates for ocean-shipping firms, called for federal conciliation to see if the men can be persuaded to come back to work today pending the regulation of their grievance.

The walkout Friday cost shippers an estimated $35,000. The ILA's local 375 is de

With K It's All . . . or Nothing at All

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—There is an oppressive air of uneasiness settling over the United Nations. Nikita Khrushchev created it.

His General Assembly speech Friday seemed to dash any hope that this session might produce a real contribution to lessening world tensions.

Khrushchev not only set back the cause of peace, but did himself a disservice if his primary idea in coming to the United Nations has been to impress the world of his truly peaceful intentions.

Khrushchev just about told the UN in so many words that he will not tolerate any action on its part that interferes with Soviet plans and policies.

The Soviet Union was upset by events in the Congo, where secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold won the support of most UN members in his handling of a crisis that the Russians, apparently, wanted to convert into chaos.

So, Khrushchev tells the UN: Let's get rid of Hammarskjold, abolish the post of secretary-general and set up an executive board where Communist representatives can raise hob with any peace mission the UN might try to undertake.

Some delegates suggested that Khrushchev might not have been wholly serious in his proposals to move the UN headquarters to another country. If he was not serious,

HAMMARSKJOLD . . . as he listened to K

then he did an even greater disservice to the cause of peace. Peace-making in a nuclear age does not lend itself to airy clowning.

Khrushchev also aroused disappointment with his other proposals. On disarmament, he offered just some new, glittering ribbons wrapped about a tattered old package.

And as for his proposal to end all colonialism at once, even those in areas thirsting for independence might be expected to detect the patent transparency.

A measure of his sincerity might be judged from his own words. Areas like, for example, Puerto Rico, a territory of the United States, are colonial.

But nothing dominated by Soviet military might is colonial: Not the satellite nations of Europe nor the non-Russian peoples of central Asia.

Khrushchev explained this simply: The areas under Russian domination do not have colonial status because the Russians and the non-Russian peoples under their control love each other very much.

When Khrushchev speaks about disarmament, he demands total and complete disarmament, knowing there is no possibility of it in a world like this one today.

With Khrushchev it's usually all or nothing. And the suspicion is that what Khrushchev really wants in the long run is: NOTHING.

'NEVER A BRIDE' BUT KEPT WAITING

NEW YORK (UPI)—Habitually tardy Fidel Castro kept Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev standing on the doorstep of the Soviet Legation for a half-hour Friday night.

Khrushchev paced back and forth and quipped with newsmen while waiting for the Cuban to arrive for a private dinner.

A reporter asked Khrushchev if he felt like a bride left waiting at the altar.

"I was never in the condition of a bride," Khrushchev shot back.

Cubans Celebrate Khrushchev Visit

By C. B. ENGELKE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and his followers, ecstatic over their "peace" talks with Nikita Khrushchev at a private dinner, celebrated into the wee hours today at their Harlem hotel.

Castro emerged all smiles from the five-hour visit to the Soviet premier's Park Avenue mansion Friday night, promised to return the hospitality in Cuba, and sped off to Harlem.

The visit with Khrushchev broke up after midnight and three hours later the Cubans were still going strong at the Hotel Theresa.

WOMEN GUESTS

Castro and some of his lieutenants appeared in the dining room at 2 a.m. for a snack and a hotel employee reported "Cuban-looking women" had been seen entering the hotel.

A number of the Cubans, who came stocked with their own food and touched off a rhubarb by plucking chickens in their first hotel, visited nearby bars for a nightcap.

Khrushchev and Castro posed for photographers after the dinner and when the Soviet premier noticed his Cuban guest was getting too close to the camera he told him to step back, apparently figuring the photographers might not be able to get good shots of the pair.

Castro looked bewildered but obliged. He then seized a microphone and spoke in his halting English.

"We have been welcomed here with a lot of hospitality, and we got a wonderful impression of Senor Khrushchev and the Soviet delegation," he said.

What was discussed at the dinner?

"Don't worry about that," Castro replied, adding a moment later: "We talked about peace."

He was asked if he intended to return the hospitality in Havana some day. "Of course," Castro replied.

There was speculation that the two leaders may have discussed Khrushchev's speech to the United Nations Friday and the one Castro will deliver to the world body Monday.

Khrushchev, confined to Manhattan since his arrival last Monday, left this morning to spend the weekend at his country's baronial estate of Glen Cove, Long Island. He will return Sunday night.

Khrushchev plans to have lunch Monday with Cyrus Eaton, Canadian-born Cleveland financier, at the Hotel Biltmore.

Dutch Boost Budget

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—The Netherlands will spend more than 1,900,000,000 guilders (about $543,000,000) on defence next year, Defence Minister Simon Visser proposed in his budget submitted to parliament Friday. The sum represents an increase of some 250,000,000 guilders (about $70,000,000) compared with the previous year.

USAF GENERAL SPECULATES

Did Russ Spacemen Die?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A top air force authority said today he believed Russia tried to put two men in space and failed.

Brig. Gen. Don Flickinger, director of bio-astronautics for the Air Force Research and Development Command, said the two would-be astronauts died after their space capsule failed to orbit.

Flickinger addressed the annual Air Force Association convention here and then made the statement in answer to newsmen's questions following his talk.

He said an unidentified object was tracked during the past week and was apparently intended to go into orbit—probably to coincide with the visit of Nikita Khrushchev to the United Nations.

The general, who is consultant in the Mercury man-in-space project of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, admitted he was speculating about the Russian space efforts.

But Flickinger said he believed the Russians had performed one new space feat, which they would soon announce to the world.

He said he considered accurate a London Daily Express report Sept. 14 that the Russians had lofted two men to a height of 62 miles in a ballistic capsule and recovered them safely. The Russians have not confirmed or denied the feat.

Municipalities Getting Blame

He said municipalities are being blamed for rising school costs although they merely act as tax collecting agents for the government and have no control over school finances.

"Let's get right out of the field of taxation for education and have the government collect its own taxes," he said. Ald. E. G. Adams of Vancouver, said the resolution was inconsistent with previous UBCM requests "and we must not put ourselves in the position where the government can say 'you don't know what you want,'" he said.

Vancouver Mayor Tom Alsbury supported Ald. Adams and called for an "open provincial-municipal" conference to discuss the whole range of civic problems.

Convention delegates left no doubt, however, that they felt school costs to be their primary problem. They overwhelmingly endorsed a resolution petitioning the provincial government to "review the apportionment of school costs with the object of relieving the property owner of this ever-increasing burden."

Rejected was a Saanich resolution to allow members of council to participate in the civic pensions program after 10 years' service as elected representatives.

Final business of the session was to pick Vernon as the site for the 1961 convention.

'Let the Gov't Collect Its Own School Taxes'

By JOHN MIKA, Times Staff Reporter

NEW WESTMINSTER — Union of B.C. Municipalities convention here wound up a three-day meeting with a heated debate on the school costs problem.

A Victoria resolution calling for a portion of income tax revenue to be earmarked for education was reworded by delegates to avoid a constitutional obstacle.

The approved version endorsed the views of several premiers at the opening session in July of the federal-provincial conference that the income tax revenue was a proper source of assistance to municipalities "to lessen the burden on homeowners in providing such essential services as education, social welfare, public health and others."

It will be sent to Premier W. A. C. Bennett before resumption of the Ottawa talks in October.

Delegates also approved, without debate, a resolution urging amendment of the Municipal Act to permit Sunday sports in communities that endorse it by local plebiscite.

Longest debate of the convention broke out over a resolution that demanded the provincial government take over 100 per cent of school operating costs and collect school taxes. It was narrowly defeated.

Opponents to the proposal said they favored its intent but it would clash with the thrice-affirmed Murison Plan for a new deal on all municipal financing problems, which would enable the government to say the UBCM did not know its own mind.

Prince George Mayor George Dezell, who proposed the resolution, said "the most important thing this convention can do is to attempt to obtain an adjustment of the costs of education to relieve the burden on ratepayers."

He said the Murison Plan "is getting a first-class run around" from the government. Courtenay Mayor William Moore said it was pointless to insist that loss of municipal autonomy would result "because we're just kidding ourselves if we think we have any autonomy in school financial matters now."

NEW NAME ASKED FOR WORK PLAN

By Staff Reporter

NEW WESTMINSTER — Unemployment touched off a prolonged debate at the closing session here of the Union of B.C. Municipalities annual convention.

A series of resolutions on the federal "winter works program" were rerafted into a single motion.

It called for changing the program's name to "public works program," establishing it on a year-round basis and extending its provisions to cover work on municipal cemeteries, garbage dumps and gravel pits.

After an intensive battle, delegates rejected the sections calling for a year-round relief program as outside their jurisdictions. But they endorsed the request for federal participation in winter works projects at the civic cemeteries, dumps and pits.

Joint Space Study Urged

STRASBOURG, France (UPI)—Britain has called on other European countries to join forces with the British Commonwealth in an effort to match the space achievements of the United States and the Soviet Union.

Scientific Research Minister Lord Hailsham told the Council of Europe that European countries will inevitably be forced to take an economic and scientific back seat if they do not pool their resources.

Caused Fatal Fire

SALZGITTER, Germany (AP)—A 17-year-old apprentice who said he may have caused a mine fire which claimed the lives of 33, was in custody today. The youth, whose name was withheld, told police he burned pieces of cardboard for fun in the Salzgitter iron ore mine shortly before the fire last July.

Wheat and Chaff

MR. KHRUSHCHEV'S address to the United Nations General Assembly was the usual mixture of serious proposal, condemnation, blandishment and propaganda. The last three should not blind us to the serious element of his speech, but the problem is to determine how serious the speaker was.

Most serious of all was his attack on the structure of the United Nations Secretariat, which threatens to destroy the effectiveness of the administration of the global body. The "presidium" Mr. Khrushchev proposes in place of the present one-man office could, with the power of a Soviet veto on the committee, stymie all action by the United Nations.

Mr. Khrushchev's proposal in this respect is a measure of his defeat in the Congo, where forceful U.N. action promises to bring order out of chaos—and incidentally save the country from Communism.

The spectacular disarmament-within-four-years proposed by the Soviet leader at his last appearance before the United Nations a year ago could have been taken at its face value. But its insincerity was shown later when Russia walked out on the disarmament debate at Geneva.

How, then, are we to assess yesterday's disarmament proposal, which closely resembles the previous one? Is it a talking point rather than an intention? Is it designed more to impress neutral nations with the Soviet passion for peace than to offer a hope of world-wide relinquishment of arms?

The neutral nations were prominent in Mr. Khrushchev's thoughts. He dwelt at length on the Congo situation, and his denunciations of colonialism were clearly intended to appeal to African and Asian countries, particularly the fourteen new African members of the United Nations.

But the words seem to ring hollowly for two reasons. First, colonialism is hardly an issue in the world today, when Britain, France, Holland and Belgium have divested themselves of their colonies or are hurrying to change the status of the rest. Other colonial peoples are under United Nations protection and scheduled to receive independence as soon as feasible.

The former Belgian Congo provided Mr. Khrushchev with a poor peg for his demand that all colonies, protectorates and trustee territories be given independence "immediately and unconditionally." Whatever may be said about colonial rule in The Congo, the immediate problem results from the country taking on independence too suddenly and without proper preparation.

The ensuing chaos may suit Mr. Khrushchev, but it has been no boon to the harassed population concerned.

Secondly, denunciations of colonialism come with ironic echoes from the leader of the great imperialistic power of this century. While other powers have been divesting themselves of their colonies, Russia has been building an ideological empire in the new manner.

Satellites, buffer states, tied economies, puppet regimes—these are the methods of Communist colonialism. Soviet colonialism constitutes a force with which leaders like Nasser and Castro feel they can gamble, obtaining as much as they can for as little as they have to pay. But men like Lumumba are not in that category. Communist advisors, agents, technicians and ambassadors descended on his Government like wolves on the fold. Only a military coup saved The Congo from their pressures.

Mr. Khrushchev's speech added to one of the mysteries of the Congo situation. The Soviet, Czech and other "Curtain" embassies left Leopoldville quickly and quietly when ordered by the Congolese strong man, Colonel Joseph Mobutu, apparently recognizing his authority. Yet in the U.N., Mr. Khrushchev declared premier-in-hiding Lumumba to be the only proper authority. Why was Col. Mobutu obeyed so meekly?

There should be no blanket dismissal of Mr. Khrushchev's speech. The chaff can be disregarded, but what real grain of truth is present should be studied and given a serious answer.

One thing seems fairly clear: The threats and tensions will continue but the risk of war seems less. That, at any rate, provides a starting point.

Last Journey

REGULAR C.P.R. FERRY service between downtown Victoria and downtown Vancouver today probably joins a marine past with such former imposing institutions as the C.P.R. trans-Pacific liners that once graced this port.

The occasion is noted with regret by thousands of citizens who have enjoyed for years what amounted to a luxury service between the capital and British Columbia's thriving metropolis. Another stage in our history may well have ended with the final day-run of the summer service—an era of graciousness for which there appears less room in a hurrying world.

It had been obvious for some years that the C.P.R. could not continue to carry on its year-round Victoria-Vancouver service. The run on an annual basis was not making money. Even a company as imposing as the C.P.R. could not continue to suffer losses on one line of its operations indefinitely.

The advent of the provincial Sidney-Tsawwassen service spelled the inevitable end of the old link—a transport arrangement that had served its time, had been for a large part of its life a model of elegant travel and had been unable to adapt itself to the changing needs of recent years.

For most practical purposes the new run from Sidney to the mainland, combined with excellent air connections between Victoria and Vancouver, will provide all that travellers can reasonably expect.

The decline of the old line is accomplished nevertheless by a wistful regret. Fine ships under fine masters sailed it. Vessels passing each other in the Strait between Trial Island and Brothie Ledge made a daily picture indelibly engraved on the memory of Victorians for generations.

Our residents are left with memories of one of the most pleasant short-sea trips in the world, delightful recollections of dining at snowy-white tables with heavy silver, of promenading clean decks, of gay departures and arrivals.

The "Princesses" will be missed, and remembered with affection.

Another Zucco Case?

VANCOUVER'S CITY PATHOLOGIST, Dr. T. R. Harmon, reporting to a coroner's inquest the other day, stated that a 73-year-old coal miner, Louis Battaglia, had silicosis.

The deceased had fought for seven years to secure a silicosis pension and had failed.

The incident will recall the efforts of the late Mr. Jack Zucco and his widow, Mrs. Bea Zucco, to secure a silicosis pension for the husband and father. Compensation was granted only after Mr. Zucco died.

These are two discouraging cases in the history of compensation legislation as it concerns sufferers from this miner's disease.

Medical men, on earlier occasions, have noted the difficulty in tracing the ailment when an individual also suffers from another disease. It seems apparent, however, that a grave injustice has been imposed on another silicosis victim and that a parallel to the Zucco case has occurred.

Is it sufficient to dismiss the matter with the rationalization that somebody made a mistake? If it is, then British Columbia's compensation machinery is failing sadly in its ability to look after the people it is intended to assist.

If silicosis diagnosis is difficult, surely the board should accept the advice received so frequently to give the workman the benefit of the doubt. It is not good enough to learn that an applicant was right only after his death.

'... On a Rainy, Rainy Day'

VICTORIANS, STILL WITH NO mail at all, will wish Vancouver interests good luck in their plan to create "a little bit of Paris" on Granville and Hastings Streets as an alternative to the more costly type of shopping mall project in Ottawa.

No matter how it is viewed the prospect is pleasing—those little tables and chairs under a big umbrella, the big umbrella itself equipped with pegs on which to hang patrons' personal umbrellas. What could be more appropriate for Vancouver?

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

IN the open fields and along the hedgerows during the early fall days we can see many birds that are visiting us for a while.

Some are just stopping over for a "refill" before moving on to their winter feeding grounds. Others have come to stay with us for the winter after spending the long summer days in the north. Look close in the bushes and you will see the Varied Thrush with his orange strip and the black band across his rusty breast searching for berries. Perhaps you will see his cousin the Hermit Thrush with his brown back and spotted breast.

As this bird flies you can see his reddish tail, and on the ground he has a trick of raising it at frequent intervals. Note his slender bill. Crabbles are one of his favorite dishes.

Steller's Jay, with his long blackish crest and his ever chattering cry, is with us again. When the acorns are plentiful the Jays seem to know and come to the oak groves in flocks.

He is an inquisitive bird and never seems to stay put.

In the deep woods you will hear the Pileated Woodpecker drilling away on an old snag in search of grubs and insects.

As he flies among the trees you can hear his call kuk-kuk kuk-kuk-kuk, and see the flash of his black and white markings.

Find the snag and you will see the oval or oblong holes that he has made, with the large chips falling to the foot of the tree.

FROM WASHINGTON

When the Wilderness World Gets Back to Normal Again

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

NOW, throughout Canada, comes the day of that melancholy autumnal rite, the closing of the summer camps. With it comes a double process of liberation and imprisonment. The natives and permanent dwellers of the camp regions are liberated from the hordes of seasonal invaders, the urban migratory fowl whose brief flight is finished for another year. The latter return to the prison of the city. Since early June, the countryside within striking range of every city has been overrun by bogus nature lovers who love it only so long as it is warm and comfortable. When the speedboats disappear, the air is cleansed of gasoline fumes and the icy glasses cease to tinkle on the patio, all the summer's brave pretences collapse like a stage scenery.

Hutchison

THE gaudy backdrop of holiday time falls to reveal the actual world, too harsh, cold and primitive for the actors of the travelling stock company. Their annual farce has closed for the season. At last the true inhabitants of the wild can emerge safely from hiding. On the lake outside my cabin window today the trout that long cowered in the depths to escape the whirling propellers rise for the final flight of flying ants. A mink scampers along the shore, sniffing the sharp autumn air and the scent of fish. A squirrel resumes his interrupted labors and, with almost human fingers, extracts seeds from pine cones for use next spring, after the big sleep.

SUDDENLY a flock of mallards and a family of loons glide down from the horizon, find the water unexpectedly quiet and pause for a short vacation before their southward journey. A deer with her overgrown fawn drinks boldly from the beach. And, surest sign of the great change, a tree toad croaks his solemn message from the woods.

The human creatures still left hereabouts are emerging, too, like prisoners from their dungeons. All summer they have endured, and pretended to enjoy, the presence of the alien swarm, picking up a few dollars by sale of farm-

"There ... see? I told you going back an hour would throw him ..."

—Barron, Victoria Daily Times.

stuff, gasoline and groceries, but secretly they pined for freedom and regarded the visitors with pity or contempt.

The grocer can stop lugging his heavy wares over the rough forest trail, sit at ease in the inner fortress of his store and talk the mysterious language of local gossip with his steady winter customers.

The garage man can finally fix his own car and his wife's neglected washing machine. The farmer digs his potatoes without the distraction of small boys clamoring around him in search of worms for bait. The aged pensioner ventures to launch his idle rowboat upon the placid lake and troll for trout, now that his enemy, the speedboat, has abandoned the hot war.

THE world, in short, is getting back to normal again, no matter what the newspaper headlines may say. The men are separated from the boys after the summer's confusion, the genuine article from the counterfeit, the natural from the artificial.

For the city camper it was a fine midsummer night's dream while it lasted, but it is over now. He has gone back where he belongs, in a cell cosily padded, insulated, electrified, thermostated, heated and equipped with television. That electronic Pandora's box shows him, every night, the great outdoors at a safe distance the fleeting image of a jungle too rugged and terrifying for his kind.

The wilderness will remain there just the same, and all its creatures in it, unchanged by the city's winter convulsions and organized collective follies that we are pleased to call civilization.

THE wilderness remains and it will still be there next summer when we shall need it again to recuperate from our self-imposed prison-sickness. Nature is remarkably durable and can tolerate even our annual invasion. Her creatures are durable also, and will politely welcome us, once the days warm up again and the cell door swings open. But privately they will prefer the cold days without us when they and the wilderness can be themselves.

The garish summer masque is over. The stage scenery is down. The rest is silence.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

UNITED NATIONS, NEW YORK

The Remorseless River of History, 'Always Flowing On'

KHRUSHCHEV, or Eisenhower, or Castro, or Hammarskjöld no doubt should be the subject of this report. But the spectacle of this United Nations General Assembly all but demands some mention of a rather less personal and much less mortal hero. History is in truth the hero here, and not these tiny, impermanent national leaders who are posturing before the world and the UN audience and the folks back home as politicians have postured since the beginning of time. Consider, for example, what lay behind the formal, outwardly so up-to-date ritual of the admission of the new nations to the U.N.

Alsop

Immediately behind this ritual, of course, was the considerable drama, in itself world-transforming, of the sudden surge and almost equally sudden collapse of the Western Imperialist impulse.

These Africans, these Cypriotes, belong to new-made nations which are hardly nations, at least as yet. In fact, they are imperialist leftovers, whose future abruptly depends on the will and wisdom of the once-ruled because of the abrupt withdrawal of the former rulers.

But consider just the Africans, whom most Westerners think had no true history before they saw the West.

Before the Western empire builders, there were the slave traders, both Arab and white, deforming, brutalizing, staining with blood almost every tribal society in Africa's dark centre.

Then before the slave-traders, there were the contests over the Sahara caravan routes, those roads of gold and ivory; and linked with these, there was the rise and fall of a long series of Negro and Arab-Negro empires, variously based in Timbuktu and Benin and who knows where else.

Great power they had, for a while. Great plunder they took or lost. In their armies, and in the armies that struck at them, thousands upon thousands might die in a single grim campaign.

Yet even these convulsions of the half-known past sink into insignificance, beside the much vaster convulsion which is not truly known, but can now be clearly deduced from the record of the rocks.

The rocks to read are in Tassili, in the North Sahara, a place so dry and bare and lifeless that any man who goes there risks his life.

The brilliant French student, Andre Lhote, took the risk with a strong team to help him. And he and his team brought back the Tassili rock-frescoes, carefully copied, with their late paleolithic spearmen, and their ominous, brooding, nameless gods, and their cattle and charioteers and Egyptianized beauties, and their scenes of the chase and love and war.

Layer upon layer of the human past, intrusion after foreign intrusion, can be deciphered in these works of magic art.

But above all, one can decipher a vast catastrophe of nature—the gradual drying up, the transformation into desert of the limitless Sahara, which once was rich with meadows and sweet streams and full of game and green with grass to pasture the horses of the Tassili charioteers and the herds of the Tassili cattle-tenders.

In that catastrophe, ethnologists now think, is the real reason for the dark men in neat blue suits who came to the bar of the U.N. to represent the new African states.

Before the Sahara became desert, the Negro peoples lived further North, and Africa's dark centre, it is supposed, was the preserve of the little pygmies who still lurk in the forests.

But nature acted. History commanded. And so the pygmies lost their heritage, and the contestants for the Congo today are Kasavubu and Lumumba and Col. Mobutu.

Will these people or their children, or their children's children honor the Kremlin, or the UN secretariat, or their generous friends in Washington and London, Paris and Brussels?

Or will they perhaps honor one among themselves who has the knack of Shaka, the great Zulu emperor—the knack of organizing power out of chaos? It was only a hundred fifty years ago, remember, when Shaka's warriors sang to him:

"Thou that art great as the mountains!
"Thou that art black!
"Thou that art vast as the sea!
"Thou who growest while others are distracted!"

But the empire of Shaka, who taught serious war-making to peoples who did not understand what war could be, also fell in the end before the guns of the West, which are now three-quarters silenced. So one is forced to conclude that history is like the river in the wise image of the old Greek, Heracitus—the river in which no man could ever bathe twice, because "the waters are always flowing on," and so it was never the same river.

He also darkly said: "The name of the bow is life; its work, death," and he added that war "is Zeus," meaning that the destinies of men and nations are always settled by conflict in the end. But if Heracitus was right about his river, as none can doubt who looks at this UN session, one must pray that he was also wrong about our destiny's true master.

'ROOM AT THE MARK'

Crumpets, Rum and Memories Comfort the Dying Year

THIS is a dangerous season for the columnist. The temptation to commit a thousand words of lush prose about the dying year and the rioting maples and the autumnal mists, with copious goblets of Keats to stiffen the heady brew, is powerful enough to turn far stronger heads than that which you will see caricatured beside these lines. But since I am nothing if not honest—and I am certainly not that—I will confess that the thing which springs most readily to mind as I contemplate the gathering gloom through the windshield wipers, is the homely crumpet.

Emery

I know that this confession is tantamount to delivering myself bound and gagged on to the operating table where Sid Barron plies his gruesome trade, but I shall not count the cost. It is time somebody put in a good word for the crumpet before it joins antimacassars and mothers-in-law and Wigan Pier in that seamy limbo frequented only by the failing comedian in search of gags for a last-chance TV show.

Let me first expose myself to assassination at the hands of thugs hired by the powerful international crumpet cartel by stating publicly that the crumpet should only be eaten between 4 and 5.30 of a grey October day. It, or more accurately they (since not even the most anaemic food-faddist will stop at one of these habit-forming morsels), must be toasted over an open fire, preferably by the prospective consumer. I will not insult your intelligence by telling you which side to toast first, since the veriest novice knows that he must darken the plain side first before exposing the pocked and pitted surface to the glowing coals.

Into these receptive craters the gourmet, spatula all a-tremble, presses butter—the best butter—before cramming the rich delicacy into his mouth and wiping his hands surreptitiously on the curtains.

First one with butter only: that is the rule which no serious devotee would wish to infringe, and there are not wanting certain purists who hold that to put anything else but butter on the open pores of the expectant crumpet is the act of a cad; they are inclined, these pundits, to find a significant correlation between the incidence of juvenile delinquency and the all-too-common practice of spreading jam and other noxious adulterants on the unoffending article.

Call me unorthodox if you like—I have been called worse things than that in my time—but I must whisper in your ear a word about the excellence of the buttered crumpet with a top dressing of Patum Peperium, or Gentlemen's Relish. And if there were no worse fare ever offered to the returning crumpet-winner than his favorite food served as a plinth to a poached egg, the world would be a happier place.

Show me a trouble-spot on the world-map, and I will show you a place where men know not the simple pleasures of the crumpet. Look at the Congo, my friends.

However, I must avert my thoughts from this indigestible topic before you begin to think me a glutton; and it is clearly rather unjust to promise you exemption from having to wade through the piles of fallen leaves that strow the average column at this time of year, only to pour crumpets and butter on your defenceless head.

Looking around for some less hackneyed symbol of the fall of the year, I find it in the sad spectacle of the yacht club's preparations for the winter months.

The floats, where only yesterday the craft were made fast—or in some cases half-fast—almost touching, bow to stern, today are almost deserted as the boats have moved out to winter moorings, or have been removed from the water altogether.

It does not seem very long ago that "May D." burst upon us in her new war-paint, and now she lies at her mooring, her mast removed, looking for all the world like an old mare turned out to grass.

The floats themselves will be removed this weekend, leaving the bay to the log-booms and the occasional fishboat sheltering from the storm. Soon an unusual quiet will descend, broken only by the harsh cry of that seasonal visitor, the frost-biter—a cry that sounds at times almost human.

"Room at the mark," it seems sometimes to say, or "Starboard, you barge"; at others, the sound pattern is strongly reminiscent of a male voice hoarsely demanding "Another hot rum, please." But these are matters for the ornithologist.

Sad as it is to see the boats going into hibernation, there is much to recall with pleasure as I review the summer.

The highlight of it, fittingly enough, was the finish to the season's last race, at Maple Bay regatta. As we crossed the line in Dick James's Lalanga II we needed a powerful pair of binoculars to help us identify the lagging fleet.

But there, hull down on the horizon, were the pride of the Pacific Northwest cruiser-racers: Maruffa, Spirit, Troubadour, Diamond Head, Sea Fever and Coral Reef among them.

The skipper, as you may imagine, was not displeased. All summer long he had been cultivating a bifurcated chin whisker; the port and starboard tufts, dyed red and green for the regatta, gave him a raffish appearance; and now in his hour of triumph he hoisted a broom at the masthead and took his ease on deck like a buccaner returned from a profitable cruise.

I may have exaggerated slightly some of the details of this notable victory, but one thing is certain: as the winter wears on the margin of our lead over our nearest rival is going to grow, as we begin to give artistic shape to the tale.

It will be something to warm us in the bleak days ahead: more satisfying, in its way, than even the most tasty crumpet ever toasted.

Gulliver's Gravel

THIS is the inside story of the seance at the YMCA last Thursday. It is perhaps worth remarking at the outset that so far as can be ascertained, this is the first time such an event has taken place within the non-sense ambit of the "Y", or at least, the first time there has been any publicity about it. It just goes to show that nothing is certain any more. But I digress.

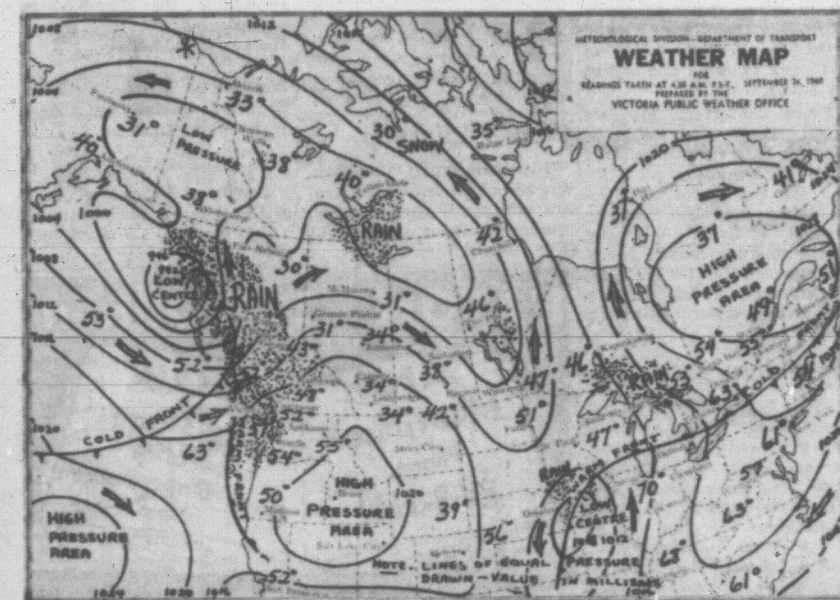

It was quite late of a Thursday night, and the gentle lullaby of the Trial Island foghorn was ushering this column inobtrusively into dreamland, when a sharp and peremptory tapping on the window pane called for investigation. Sure enough, it was the Court House Seagull, far uptown from his customary beat, demanding entrance to deliver a message of importance.

The sash was lowered, and in he flew, knocking over several knickknacks. "Hey! Watch out! Stop looting! Light somewhere!"

"No room to manoeuvre! Move that chair! Duck! O.K., hold still! Fine! Thanks!"

"Get out of my hair!"

"Just a minute. Got to get adjusted to this confined space. That's better!" and he hopped onto the back of a chair, taking several clawks of scalp with him. "Well!" he resumed, preening himself while I wiped up the blood, which was running freely over my face, "Well!"

Deeper Freeze in Store Europe's Cold War Fear

LONDON (AP)—Western Europe feared today that Nikita Khrushchev's speech at the United Nations General Assembly heralds a fresh cold wave that will plunge East-West relations into an even deeper freeze.

The Soviet premier's attack on UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld was resented by newspapers in every non-Communist capital. His proposal to replace Hammarskjöld with a three-man executive was seen as a bid to kill any rapid UN emergency action in the future.

In contrast, the Russian Communist party newspaper Pravda ran a huge headline proclaiming: "The world listens, applauds, approves."

Communist China, silent all along on Khrushchev's presence at the United Nations, completely blacked out the speech. Peking radio broadcasts said nothing, another possible indication of the depth of the ideological split between Moscow and Peking.

The official new China news agency gave more attention to President Eisenhower for offering a plan "to lure the

'Clown' Revels In Turmoil

TORONTO (UPI)—Liberal leader Lester Pearson Friday branded Nikita Khrushchev a "clown" and praised President Eisenhower's UN approach.

On his return from New York, he said a baseball game on television there "interested me more" than Khrushchev. He soon switched over to a John Kennedy campaign speech, then to Khrushchev.

Referring to Khrushchev as a "clown," he said he felt the Soviet leader was "delighted" to be confined to Manhattan Island.

To the turmoil and the boos, "he apparently had no desire to dampen it down. I would say that he was reveling in this kind of treatment. It gave him an excellent chance to get into the headlines."

In a more serious vein, Pearson felt Khrushchev's appearance was not good for the routine operation of the UN, but "it is all to the good if he's there to present constructive proposals."

It was his opinion, Pearson said, that the Russian premier "was bestirring the UN like a colossus" to demonstrate his power to Communist China.

He praised President Eisenhower's approach as "moderate, sensible and civilized."

'Foreign Minister of the World'

The Danish newspaper Dagens Nyheder said Russia wants to abolish Hammarskjöld's office "because in the Congo the UN has, for the first time, really demonstrated its moral and military strength."

"Hammarskjöld," said the newspaper, "has acted as foreign minister for all the world—which means that Soviet plans have been thwarted."

The right wing French newspaper said Khrushchev obviously was making a big play to get support from the Africans, Asian and Latin-American nations.

In West Germany, the influential Frankfurt Allgemeine charged the Soviet with using the tribunes of the UN for its own purposes and added:

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

Only July 9 in this diary I made some remarks about handwriting which offended many people; they have written to me on the subject, with varying degrees of courtesy. I said that I did not believe that handwriting can be used for character analysis; my correspondents think it can, and some of them have offered to demonstrate their skill. I thank them all for their letters and their offers, but especially I thank them for their interest in handwriting, which is worthy of anyone's careful consideration.

Perhaps some of my readers will be sufficiently interested to read Edward Johnston, by Priscilla Johnston (Faber & Faber). It is a biography of the man who, more than any other single person, revived the art of calligraphy in our time, and whose influence extended to the teaching of writing in schools, to the use of calligraphy in advertising and all kinds of public notices, and to the design of type faces. An example of Johnston's writing is so beautiful that it makes the heart leap—I mean that literally.

I remember clearly when, as a boy of 14, I casually opened Johnston's book Writing and Illuminating and Lettering in a public library. I was at once seized with a strong desire to be able to make pages of writing as beautiful as those in the book. It was the beginning of the Easter holidays, and I worked as hard as I could for the whole vacation—without much effect, for I was clumsy, and calligraphers are not made in a hurry—and have toiled at intervals ever since.

Excellence Influencing Millions

The quality of Johnston's lettering influenced thousands as it influenced me, and it now influences millions, for it is copied everywhere.

Its beauty was of proportion, not of ornament. When Johnston first tried his hand at lettering in 1896, the art of illumination had sunk very low; illuminated manuscripts were produced, for the usual occasions, in alphabets so grotesque, so contorted and burdened with squiggles and curls, that they were unreadable. They were produced with paints and brushes.

Johnston went back to ink and a quill pen, and the beauty of legibility. His pupils were many, but the name of Eric Gill is perhaps best known; his influence was profound.

Final Work for Winston Churchill

What did Johnston actually do? He wrote fine manuscripts for people who wanted them. There was enough work of the kind to keep him busy. The last thing to come from his workshop was written in 1944, when he was dying, by his pupil Irene Wellington, under his supervision.

It was for Winston Churchill to send to Harry Hopkins, who had lost his son in the war; the plain piece of parchment bore only these words from Macbeth: "Your son, my lord, has paid a soldier's debt."

What sort of man was Johnston? His biographer is his daughter, and she has dealt lovingly with a man of great eccentricity.

Greatly Loved by Pupils, Friends

He was chronically slow in executing commissions, so that people who needed them were kept on tenterhooks till the last possible moment. He constructed an elaborate water-clock which opened the door of his henhouse at dawn. He was vastly innocent of the world, and rather a prig.

He was greatly loved by his pupils and friends; for in his search for the best, the

B.C. Beauty Described In New Work

ALONG THE ROAD TO HAZELTON, by H. Glynn-Ward. Mitre Press Ltd. 46 pages, $1.00.

This little gem of a book has captured between its covers, the rugged natural beauties found only in British Columbia. Miss Glynn-Ward sees this province as a mysterious, legend-bearing country and through her sensitive writings has caught many a hidden wonder in her description of the mountains, forests and lakes.

She came to B.C. in 1910 and has travelled widely and lived here most of her life. Her other books are "The Glamour of British Columbia" published in New York, London and Toronto; "The Writing on the Wall," an expose of the infiltration of Orientals on the Pacific seaboard of North America and the dangers thereof. Many of her pronouncements were proven correct during the two world wars.

"Along the Road to Hazelton" is a collection of poems which are the natural result of her love for B.C. It points up a deep sense of shame at the unhappy status of the Indians in Canada. This is particularly evident in her poems "Indian Knitter" and "Dirge of the Salish" and the sad lament of "The Haida."

The largest religious library in the world is housed at the Admont Monastery in Austria. It houses more than 120,000 volumes, including manuscripts going back to the 8th Century.

ONE OF THE MOST UNUSUAL characters in Soho must be tall, gaunt Susanne Wenger, a 45-year-old Austrian artist. Susanne is a white priestess of a Nigerian village. For 10 years she and her university lecturer husband, German-born Ulli Beller, have lived with the Yoruba tribe in western Nigeria. Recently an exhibition of dyed tapestries she made in the Nigerian village opened at Soho's Gallery One in London. Susanne, wearing her priestess' insignia, is seen at the gallery arranging her show. She wore an embroidered African hat and jacket of native cloth, rings of ivory and brass, and silver, ivory and shell bracelets. "Round her neck were strings of beads and a leopard skin charm. 'The people made me a priestess of the tribal religion of Olatais, the Earth God, because they realized my paintings were creations of my spirit, and in a way religious,' she said. And what are her duties as a priestess? 'We dance to the beating of drums, sometimes in front of my pictures,' she said. 'But I cannot tell you more details. I am forbidden to talk about it. You see, the Yoruba elders are wise men. We can communicate without talking. It is a sort of telepathy.' (Minopie.)

MacLennan's Latest Anthology Of 29 Essays Among His Finest

Hugh MacLennan, Scotchman's Return and Other Essays, Toronto, MacMillan, 1960. 279pp. $4.00

Reviewed by R. G. LAWRENCE

This is a book to be chewed and digested, not swallowed at a single sitting; the 29 essays can well be savored over as many evenings. Approximately half of the pieces are serious in tone, but the humor in the others touches even these.

The papers divide broadly into four subject headings: cultural, literary, political and personal. The first group includes the most important essay in the book, "The Classical Tradition and Education," on the decline of classical studies and the deterioration of modern education. Seven of the essays deal with literature—modern poetry, the novel, and, in "Literature in a New Country," a perceptive study of the growth of Canadian literature.

Elsewhere in the collection MacLennan analyzes contemporary international affairs and various facets of Canadian politics (including an enthusiastic essay on Sir John A. MacDonald).

Perhaps though it is the personal essays which the reader will remember longest—charming reminiscences of student days at Oxford, impressions of Scotland, New York, and Montreal, along with an exciting and cleverly written essay on "The Secret and Voluptuous Life of a Rose-Grower."

MacLennan writes fluently, with occasional sharp ironies such as these: "Politics had not yet become a branch of the advertising business"; "The Canada Council has been established... to persuade the government to agree to pension off every novelist who can prove he has written at least five novels in his lifetime." MacLennan's poetic sensitivity appears in these lines: "I run my hand over the smooth, olive-green trunk and feel the hard muscles inside the bark. An oak, especially a young one, feels human when your hand strokes it."

ABOUT PRINCE RUPERT

Gateway to Alaska Of Interest Here

PRINCE RUPERT, by Dr. R. G. Large, cover by M. L. Knutson. Illustrated. 210 pps. The Mitchell Press, Vancouver.

Dr. R. Geddes Large, an outstanding citizen of Prince Rupert, has produced a book about the "Gateway to Alaska" which will be of keen interest to many Victorians.

The book, profusely illustrated, covers the first 50 years of the life of Prince Rupert and documents its growth from a frontier town to a bustling hub of the north-land.

Many of the names mentioned by the author will be well known to Victorians: H. F. Pullen, who went north from this newspaper to edit the Prince Rupert Daily News; T. Duff Pattullo, who became premier of B.C.; and Col. Cy Peck, the renowned and popular VC winner who died not long ago in this city.

Dr. Large has written a simple and straightforward text and in many instances "lets the picture tell the story." The result is an intriguing piece of Canadiana, illuminating an area whose greatest days are still ahead.

The book serves, too, as a reminder that Victoria's centenary is less than two years away, and that there is a job to be done for a commemorative volume on this city. J.S.K.

ART IN REVIEW

Display of Dutch Masters Rare Opportunity for City

By ARTHUR CARRY

The youngster, with a twinkle in his eye, presumably because he has taken a bite from the apple he is holding, in the painting by Caesar Van Everdingen, is a classic example of this period of portraiture in the 17th century. The boy is also holding a bird in his other hand, wearing lace-trimmed collar and cuffs, and one square-toed shoe may be seen protruding from under his silken skirt. The child's charming character and pose, overcome the obvious errors in the composition and I think one could not help but experience joy when seeing this picture.

This is one of 30 "masters" now showing at the Art Gallery. The Dutch and Flemish masters, from Britain's National Loan Collection Trust, will be at the gallery until Oct. 9, and it is seldom we have the opportunity to view such a magnificent exhibition.

Sketch by Rubens

Rubens is represented by a "Head of a Woman," a most unusual study of the side and back of the head, neck, shoulder and top of her gown, with a ruby red necklace against the soft flesh color of the skin. Only a master could achieve what Ruben has in this sketch.

An early student of Ruben's, Sir Anthony Van Dyck, who became the court painter to Charles I of England, completed some very beautiful religious compositions, although he is best known for his portraits. His "Virgin and Child," is with this, collection and is an example of some of his finest work.

There are several sketches in oil, studies that would be used for reference in painting larger landscapes or portraits, and are worthy of close examination. Nicolas Berghem painted, in about one square foot, numerous horse's heads, and Adriaen Van De Velde did three studies of his pet dog, which are delightful, 400 years later.

Appealing Satire

"Man Lighting a Pipe" by Godfried Schalken, an artist who put a sense of humor and an appealing satire in his work, liked to paint light effects produced by the candle flame. You will find one of his paintings in Buckingham Palace, for, like Van Dyck, he painted the nobles in England.

With this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, every effort should be made to see this exhibition.

The recent work of Michael Morris, some of which he completed while on a scholarship this summer at the University of British Columbia, show the result of years of study, hard skillfully assembled and painted; while the latter, a composition of light and dark shadows and reflections, form an abstract of great dimension. His sketches are excellent, particularly the line drawings. In the "Bathers," a line and wash drawing, we find a fresh, inspiring style emerging.

Michael recently won another scholarship, the "Hallmark Art Scholarship" for the most artistically gifted student in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

(BB PLUS) "THE RAT RACE" (Capitol)—As any seasoned traveller will attest: Living at a city while holidaying there and understanding it through living in it produces two entirely different cities.

Therefore, after saying that I have always enjoyed New York on occasional visits over the years, finding the town hospitable and the citizens generally fair and friendly, I have no doubt that I would find it quite different if I were called upon to earn a living within its teeming boundaries.

However, as pictured in Paramount's "The Rat Race," the hard-bitten, razor-sharp, cynics-ridden den of harpies, sharpies and liars left me cold. Are New Yorkers tougher and rougher than citizens of other large cities such as London, Tokyo, Paris, Moscow or Berlin? I doubt it. There are more of the punks than in smaller cities only because of the huge populations so the ratio is more in evidence.

Therefore if my premise is correct then it would be difficult to work up my sympathy over the denunciations of Debbie Reynolds, a disillusioned young girl who spends most of the picture's 105 minutes running time telling young Milwaukee musician Tony Curtis "get out of town" before it kills him.

NOW LET'S BE TRUTHFUL about it. Debbie is having a rough time when she and Curtis first meet. She's in debt to her boss, Don Rickles, shady owner of a dance hall, who is forever trying to con her into being a call girl. She's broke. What's worse, when young Curtis enters the scene, all bright-eyed and bushy-tailed in his eagerness to make the grade with a big name band, she is about to be evicted from her room by landlady Kay Medford.

Curtis soon fixes that, however. He suggests that she share his room. After all, he explains, there are two beds and a curtain between.

It is unnecessary to speak of the plot further. As entertaining as it is in spots—and it is—it seems to suffer from its original premise from opening to final curtain.

Nonetheless, it must be admitted at the same time that the team of Curtis and Reynolds is an interesting one. They are both pleasant to the eye. They are artists of growing maturity and handle their respective chores with professional ease.

Best of the secondary actors are Miss Medford as the hard-jawed, outwardly callous and calculating landlady, and veteran Jack Oakie as the philosophizing bartender. Rickles' performance as the perspiring trader in flesh also is sound.

SEEING 'DOUBLE'

Complicated saga of a young woman who led a double life will be delineated by the Victoria Theatre Guild, Langham Court, opening Friday, Sept. 30, for an eight-night run. Helen Peaker is the central figure. Her writing partner is Gene Hewlett, above her, and Nora Kellie, right, takes the part of the writers' agent. With the help of Don Ross and Ron Gilmore, who is new to Victoria audiences, a delightfully amusing situation unfolds, with many good laughs. Janus is directed by Phyllis Dulmage, who has won many laurels both here and in Saskatchewan for her fine directing. The curtain goes up at 8.15. The demand for seats has been so great in the immediate past seasons that for all major productions in 1960-61 plays will run for eight nights, instead of the former seven. They will open Fridays and play through until the following Saturday. A new box office is being used this season, courtesy of Eaton's, and not only tickets but memberships and season tickets will be available at Eaton's box office, starting Sept. 26. Early reservations are advisable.

Plans for Festival Already Under Way

At the first board meeting of this term of the Music Festival, plans are already well in hand and committees are all at work on the 1961-62 syllabus.

Mr. Harry Bigsby, president, reported fully on his attendance at annual meeting and conference of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals held in Winnipeg in the latter part of June.

He felt that this, our first appearance at one of these conferences, had been very well worth while. In the Digest

Report published on this annual meeting, it is most interesting to read that of our own festival, the British adjudicator, Mr. Roy Hickman, said: "This was a really fine festival in wonderful festival spirit shared by both competitors and audiences alike and also a very intelligent press. The children as always were tops and their gallant teachers so courageous in their acceptance of criticism and so genuinely grateful for it."

The dates for the 1961 Festival are fixed to secure the services of a British chain adjudicator in both singing and piano classes.

This will place the senior section of the festival from Monday, April 17 to 21, and the schools the following week.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The arrival of the new editions of the stamp catalogues is always keenly looked forward to by collectors, who are eager to see how the new prices compare with last year's quotations.

Scott's Vol. 11 for 1961 has now arrived, and there are certainly plenty of changes and new priceings to keep us busy; in fact there are 40,854 of them! This volume covers foreign countries only, so we shall have to wait until the middle of October before Vol. I appears, which lists the more popular (in Victoria) group including Canada, the British Commonwealth, U.S.A., and the Americas.

Nevertheless, the interest in Vol. II has increased greatly here since topical collecting became so popular, and in spite of the increase in price this year to $9, many philatelists will consider it a "must."

A glance at the new volume shows that the market is particularly strong in Austria, Germany, Italy and Colonies, early Japan, Saar, and Vatican City, many increases being shown. Topicals, such as Sports and Olympics, are very much in demand, with new highs shown. The Olympic sets of Greece have risen to $166 for the 1896 issue, and $126.75 for the 1906 series—up 50 per cent over last year's quotations. The five high values of Saar of the second issue have moved from $160 to $232. About the only country to be downgraded is Armenia, where 27 stamps have been cut in price.

Names of several countries have been changed, mostly in Africa, and it seems probable that many more will follow suit. And a year's accumulation of new stamp issues (1739), has required the addition of 50 extra pages, making 1413 in all.

Coin Note: Since Hawaii was granted statehood the other day, its coins (10c, 25c, 50c and $1) which were issued toward the end of last century, are now included as part of the issues of the U.S.A. This has caused a mad scramble to get hold of them, and prices have suddenly jumped from a few dollars to over $100 almost overnight.

A Pleasant Evening's Guesswork

KEPT WOMEN CAN'T QUIT, by Erle Stanley Gardner writing as A. A. Fair, George J. McLeod Ltd., Toronto, $3.25.

For a couple of nights of harmless whodunnity in the tradition of private eye sleuthing, this latest by a favorite American writer fits the formula.

The Gardner/Fair fan will find familiar characters in Donald Lam and Bertha Cool, improbable partners in a Los Angeles investigation agency approached by the curvaceous dame in distress and the police department, although not necessarily in that order.

Embodiment of a rather time-worn contrivance—private detective and police rivalry—the plot nonetheless is sufficiently involved to keep a reader guessing to nearly the end as to what strings lead to the quarry: a hot murderer and a cool $50,000.

Only in this case both the gangster element and police department are accused (by each other) of snaffling the scratch. Meanwhile a diminutive Donald Lam's encounters with women run a teasing, but only teasing—thread, through the tale.—G.S.K.

DICK'S PICK—A fine new talent is introduced by Guaranteed. She's Penny Parker; catch her with "Heartache Weather." Others: "Temptation" (Roger Williams, Kapp); "No" (Dodie Stevens, Dot); "Blue Heartaches" (Tommy Edwards, MGM); "Anytime" (Teresa Brewer, Coral); "Mommy Out De Light" (Mickey and Sylvia, RCA); "I'll Pretend" (Debbie Reynolds, Dot); "The Twist" (Chubby Checker, Parkway); "No One Will Ever Know" (Jack Scott, Guaranteed); "Three Beautiful Words" (The Stargazers, Palette).

Music from around the world on LPs—WB has "Scandinavian Shuffle" featuring a world-famous Swedish group, the Sve-Danes; on RCA, "Hugo Winterhalter Goes Gypsy," with fine arrangements of gypsy standards; on Decca, there's a beautiful album, "The Magic of the Caribbean," with melodies by Herbert Spencer and his orchestra and an album of color pictures; Elektra has Ron and Nama with "Sabra," folk songs from Israel; MGM has "Flamenco Fantasy," with Sabicas playing a thrilling guitar.

On Kapp, Jose Ferrer joins a distinguished list of actors who've tried narrating Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf." This one has the music played by Gossens (the name is spelled incorrectly in one place on the jacket, incidentally) and the Vienna State Opera Orchestra. Ferrer does a fine job with this, and if you're interested, he also recorded it in Spanish.

Be Sure Before You Buy

Perhaps the most important step in buying a home is the "thinking stage" . . . thinking by every member of the family about what they need and want in terms of space and facilities. The number and ages of children, hobbies enjoyed by individuals or the whole family, your mode of living and entertaining, will all influence the design of home you choose.

And the time for this thinking is before you commit yourselves to a specific model. Of course, your needs and desires have to be related to what you can afford; few of us are in the fortunate position of being able to have everything we want in our home.

But whatever price range your home must be in, you will find many different house designs to fit it. One of them is ultimately better suited to your particular needs than the others, and you want to be sure that's the one you buy.

AFTERTHOUGHT

Failure to do this planning can result not only in discovery of little annoyances or deficiencies in your new home; it can even result in the "forgotten room"—the need for space which could have been provided in the planning stage, but which comes now as an afterthought.

For most of us, this thinking stage will mainly involve choosing between alternatives, for we can't have everything. Desire for a fourth bedroom and a family room may mean doing without a basement. This is turn might involve cutting down on miscellaneous storage space. Desire for a separate dining-room may mean accepting a smaller kitchen and living-room. Desire for a second bathroom may mean an increase in cost.

All of these things must be weighed carefully in the light of your available funds, and in the light of what is available in new homes in your community. And the time to do this evaluating is before—not after.

BORROW IDEAS

If you're buying for the first time, you may not want to rely entirely on your own ideas in choosing a house design. It helps a great deal to pick up ideas when you visit friends. They will be glad to talk about the features they appreciate most, and the things they don't like or could do without, in their own houses.

Profit from their mistakes, and look for some of their better ideas when shopping for your own home. Proper advance planning eliminates the need for costly changes after you buy, and enables you to shop in a more organized fashion. It also means your understanding with your builder will be clear. You'll know what you're getting for your money, and he'll know what you expect.

Sometimes a straight question, a simple matter-of-fact question such as asked by a child, will stop us short and make us realize we have been taking a lot for granted.

Then years have come and gone since this column carried the first article on the fall digging and dividing of perennials, and it was not until last week that it was brought home to me that there may be gardeners who do not know the reason for this long-standing garden ritual.

The question was straight forward and to the point: "Why should I dig my perennials and divide them into a number of pieces?" My garden is now full to the limit, so what would be the use of making a lot more plants?"

Jack

Supplying an answer made me realize that the division of plants is usually linked with methods of propagation, stress being laid on the fact that a quantity can be obtained by breaking up one already in the garden.

This could very well lead gardeners to assume that, until such times as additional plants are wanted, the perennials in the border should be left undisturbed.

Further, it may be the reason for the number of "ghost" plants seen in older gardens, plants which are mere wreaths of their former selves.

There are several reasons why perennials should be lifted and divided, the purpose of propagation being the least concern of the average home gardener.

Of far greater importance is the maintaining of a maximum display with the minimum of material, and this is not possible when plants are old and worn out.

Most of the flowering perennials which we use in our gardens form a clump which increases in size each year. This increase in size is due to the formation of new growths around the outer edge, pushing outwards in all directions in a frantic search for food and moisture.

To control the spread and maintain some measure of orderliness in the border, we dig the plants, replenish the soil with food and moisture-holding humus, and replant.

Without any thought of increasing the number, perennials require this treatment every five years in order to thrive and give their best.

Another reason for regular lifting of perennials is to obtain young material which gives the largest and best colored flowers.

Young Nurtured at Expense of Old

The rule in nature is to cherish the young at the expense of the old, and as the clumps increase in size we find the centre, or original, portion will die out and leave the younger outside growths to carry on.

For this reason we divide the clumps when we dig them for replenishing the soil. Here again, we may not be interested in increasing the number of plants, but we are interested in securing the younger portions and discarding the parts that have deteriorated.

It amounts to rejuvenating the border, an important step toward a good garden display and the only means of producing prize-winning blooms for flower shows.

Most perennials require rejuvenating after about three years, although some will do well for five years, therefore it is a good policy to dig and divide the plants, and replenish the soil, every fourth year.

It is thought by some gardeners that the replacement of the large clumps by single plants will make the border look poorly furnished, or bare, and for this reason they prefer to let the plants deteriorate as long as the border appears well filled.

This is easily overcome by following the accepted landscaping practice, or replacing each large clump with from three to five small divisions planted in a group.

Each Division at Best in Four Years

Each division is an individual young plant which will give its best display for the next three or four years, and the group planting creates the same mass of color as the older clump but with larger and better colored flowers.

An old clump of most perennials will provide five young and vigorous divisions, sufficient to make the desired mass effect, leaving a partly dead centre and many weaker growth centres which cause some gardeners a lot of worry. There is a feeling that all this material should be of some value and, rather than consign it to the compost heap where it belongs, it is inflicted on an unsuspecting

Itinerant Repairman Dangerous

TORONTO — Hundreds of unsuspecting Canadian home owners will be swindled out of their household savings this year by fast-talking door-to-door salesmen selling shoddy home repair jobs.

This warning was made in a story appearing in the latest issue of "Building Supply Dealer," the Maclean-Hunter business magazine published in Toronto. The story drew particular attention to the large number of complaints in the home improvement field that have poured into local offices of the Better Business Bureau across Canada.

In Toronto, for instance, an itinerant repairman told a 73-year-old woman that her roof would collapse if it was not repaired immediately. She agreed to pay all her savings of $760 to have the roof fixed. The workman appeared for a day-and-a-half and completed his "repairs" with tar paper. A charitable estimate of the job's real worth—$260.

MOPPING OPERATIONS — Damp-proofing the foundation walls with tar on the outside helps to keep the basement of a new house dry. The drain tiles at the base of the wall are covered with crushed stone before the earth is replaced around the foundation.

Plywood Contour Tray Has Many Possibilities

This easily built little item seems to have as many phases as the moon, and it looks simple enough for the manual training early teen to handle.

The knee desk version might well fill the bill when you have handwork to do beside the radio: assembling your clever hand-wrought jewelry, mending socks from the laundry basket, sorting out the interminable pictures that junior forgot he had to have for school tomorrow.

The juvenile version is all right as long as those little knees don't pull up in excitement when Hopalong Woosies ropes the bad guys while protecting the lil' ol' school marm.

But the other one—that's a pip! Fine for invalids, permanent or otherwise—but what a delight for a sinfully luxurious breakfast-in-bed on Mother's Day, or birthday, or just any day you can get the family out of your hair long enough.

Add a box of bon bons, a telephone, a good book, a negligee, a chaise longue . . . a dream . . . a mirage . . . ah, me!

Meanwhile, back in the land of logic . . . what a perfect solution to the ever-present gift problem for all those friends. You can be almost

Portable Power

NEW YORK (CP) — The electric cord may be about to go the way of the buggy whip. The secret of this new scientific phenomenon is the rechargeable, nickel cadmium battery, first used in America for a multiple-head shaver by Remington Electric Shavers. This new invention means portable electricity — say an iron that heats without being plugged in.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

New bulbs of daffodils and all narcissi should be planted as soon as possible. Also hyacinths, but keep tulips, muscari and bulbous iris for later-planting.

Beds of annuals which have passed their best should be cut down or pulled out, and put on the compost heap.

Permanent plantings of evergreen trees and shrubs can now be made. Prepare the soil well, and water the plants until heavy rains occur.

Cut off old gladiolus flower stems; the leaves remain until they begin to yellow; then dig the corms for storing indoors over winter.

Sweet peas sown outdoors now in good soil and a southerly position will give cut flowers in May next year.

Fix up outdoor planters with small evergreens for winter and early spring.

Finishing potting up of all greenhouse plants needing this attention so that they may become re-established before colder weather.

Ripen Christmas flowering cactus by giving scarcely any water for next four weeks. From sunset until morning keep plant in dark place where no electric light is put on.

Gather all mature squash

without delay. Handle gently and store carefully at about 50 degrees F. Immature squash can be left on vines and used as needed. If covered with sacking on cool nights. Sweet peppers, both red and green, will keep fresh after picking for two to three weeks at 50 degrees F.

Bucs Merely Postpone Plan for Pennant Party

Braves End Pirate Streak; Cardinals Stay in Running

By United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates say keep that champagne cold because they were planning to pitch Bob Friend today, Harvey Haddix Sunday and the bat-boy after that.

In short, the Pirates are convinced they'll clinch their first National League pennant in 33 years before the weekend is over.

Actually, they had a chance to wrap it up today — if Friend beats the Milwaukee Braves, and the Chicago Cubs defeated the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

Should Friend and Haddix both win, however, it'll be all over no matter what the Cardinals do.

Bob Buhl was the party-pooper Friday night when he held the Pirates to five hits in a 2-1 victory for the Braves that snapped Pittsburgh's six game winning streak. The Cardinals didn't co-operate any either when they swept a doubleheader from the Cubs by 5-1 scores, to climb within six games of first place.

'JUST A DELAY'

"Just a temporary delay," declared Pirate third baseman Don Hoak. "Nobody's going to stop us now."

Pittsburgh skipper Danny Murtaugh took the defeat philosophically, too.

"We've got to lose one once in a while," he said. "We won six in a row, you know."

The Braves broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning when Del Crandall bounced a single over the head of shortstop Dick Schofield to score Chuck Cotter from third base.

YANKEES WIN

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia beat Cincinnati, 6-1. Los Angeles and San Francisco were idle.

New York Yankees reduced their "magic number" to four in the American League race with a 5-1 win over the Boston Red Sox. The Chicago White Sox tightened their hold on second place by beating the Cleveland Indians, 7-0; the Washington Senators stopped the Baltimore Orioles, 4-0, and the Kansas City Athletics downed the Detroit Tigers, 4-1.

Billy Muffett of the Red Sox was coasting along with a 1-0 lead until he ran into a five-run rally by the Yankees in the eighth inning. Hector Lopez tied the score with a double and then came home with the tie-breaking run on Roger Maris' single. Bob Turley was the winner.

MINORS EJECTED

Early Wynn won his 13th game for the White Sox by checking the Indians on seven hits. Ted Kluszewski and rookie Stan Johnson homered for the White Sox. Minnie Minoso drove in two runs before being ejected in the ninth for flinging his bat toward the mound after rookie Frank Funk decked him with an inside pitch. Barry Latman was the loser.

Dave Parker Named Trainer for Cougars

Coach George Agar is "still running into a few roadblocks" in regards to signing new players for Victoria Cougars, but he didn't have any trouble finding a new trainer for the Western Hockey League team.

Agar said today that Dave Parker, 25, will handle training duties, replacing Berlyn Hodges who left the city to accept a similar position with Portland Buckaroos.

Parker, a native of Regina, was the original stick boy with the present-day Cougars. He has been the team's equipment manager in the past few years and also assisted Hodges in his training chores.

BIG ONE, ISN'T IT?

Anglers in southern Vancouver Island areas, who have generally found slim pickings in their salmon searches this summer, can cast envious eyes towards east coast. Big run of tackle-busting bluefin tuna has shown up off Halifax Harbor this week. Halifax youngster gazes in awe at one of them, an 890-pounder caught by Otto Miller. It is largest taken off Nova Scotia this year.

CLICKS ON QUINELLA

Shudda Sure Likes That Glory Horse

Shudda Haddim likes that Whirl Glory horse. Mr. Haddim, who makes one play per day during the 14-day meeting at Sandown Park, cashed a place bet on Whirl Glory Wednesday.

Shudda was back Friday with a win quinella on Whirl Glory and Keats Island in the first two races. Both runners got home in front and Shudda was in the clouds as he cashed two tickets.

The payoff was small on both his choices and he was only able to bet $2 on each race. However, it looked big to Shudda, who had upped his original stake of $25 to $27.90 when he stepped up at the wicket today to wager two bucks on Honeywell to win in the third.

Grid Rivals Keep Cotton Bowl Busy

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League moves into new "old" territory tonight to launch its first head-to-head fight with the rival American League.

The Dallas Cowboys, a collection of players from the other 13 NFL clubs and a handful of rookies, play the Pittsburgh Steelers in the Cotton Bowl.

On Sunday afternoon, the Dallas entry in the fledgling American Football League will play the Los Angeles Chargers in the same Cotton Bowl.

Just eight years ago, Dallas refused to support even one professional team.

The 41-year-old NFL played before 3,140,409 for its 72 games last year and for the eighth successive year set an attendance record. With 13 teams in the loop this time around, new commissioner Pete Rozelle hopes to break all records again. A lot will depend on how the Dallas team is received.

The new scheduling system for the 13 teams provides for each club to have one Sunday off during the season. Detroit pulls the first bye Sunday.

The NFL kicked the lid off its new season at Los Angeles Friday night and the St. Louis Cardinals shocked 47,448 fans by upsetting the Rams 43-21.

RESEARCH WORKERS CLAIM...

Those Deer Aren't Really Hungry

VANCOUVER (CP)—People who worry about deer going hungry in the cold and snow can relax.

Research workers at the University of British Columbia's wildlife farm say they have determined that game animals practically cease to eat during the winter.

WEIGHED EACH WEEK

This and other facts have been learned by a team of professors studying growth characteristics of game animals at the farm, which is sponsored by UBC, the B.C. fish and game department and the National Research Council.

Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan and Dr. Harold C. Norton of the zoology department and Dr. A. J. Woods of the animal husbandry department have as their subjects three species of deer, several bighorn sheep and a moose raised on the farm from a 30-pound baby.

Surprisingly, it is the smaller animals such as white tail deer which give the most trouble in handling, the professors say.

Part of the study is the weekly weighing of each of the animals and none has shown any desire yet to assist in the operation.

With the breeding season approaching, the animals are becoming increasingly difficult to handle.

Most of the animals were brought here as week-old infants. They are given the type of food they would naturally find in the wilds and always more than they can eat.

It has been found that they followed a natural pattern in the amount they eat, taking practically nothing at all in the winter.

SANITARY CONTROL
The baby moose, now a year old, has been putting on weight at an amazing rate, now weighing 600 pounds. Dr. Norton says it likely will reach 1,000 pounds at maturity.

The farm, 10 years old, has had a remarkably low mortality rate among its captive wildlife. Strict sanitary control is maintained to prevent disease which might swiftly wipe out the valuable pack and ruin the experiment.

Dr. Norton says the animals may have changed in temperament but they are physiologically the same as when in the wilds. Some become quite attached to their handlers, although this is discouraged.

"More people have been injured by allegedly tame animals than by those known to be wild," says Dr. Norton.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

Another British Columbia season of thoroughbred racing is headed down the home stretch at Sandown Park and with the bangtails getting increased attention from local punters, a lot of people have been wondering just how the B.C. Racing Commission is making out in its first year of operation.

Some progress has been noticed during the summer. The stable areas of B.C. tracks, where once any Tom, Dick or Mary could wander almost at will, now have security guards. And a licensing system for authorized personnel has been set up, which certainly lessens the threat of tampering or temptation.

There seems to have been a reduced number of aging, unsound nags shoved out on the track in front of unsuspecting bettors. Control over the habits and tactics of horsemen appears to have been tightened.

But since much of the important work of racing commission doesn't show on the surface, I set out to ask questions. And it was courteous Ken McConnell, former sports editor of The Vancouver Province, now serving on the three-man commission with chairman Glen McDonald and co-chairman Allan McGavin, who was the target for the queries.

Now admitting to 55 summers, Ken just about grew up with horses. His father handled harness horses in Alberta and McConnell covered the racing beat all through his better than 35 years of sports writing at Edmonton and Vancouver.

Ken has a genuine respect and affection for all sports, but his favorite has always been horse racing. So when the chatter got around to thoroughbreds and the commission, I just sat back and listened.

Better Facilities One of Objectives

"One of our main objectives," he said, "is better facilities for fans at all three race tracks in B.C.—Landsdowne Park and Exhibition Park in Vancouver, and Sandown Park."

"The racing, steadily improving the calibre of the thoroughbred horse, will take care of itself. The B.C.-bred horse has become a distinctive and respected animal and this province produced about 300 foals last year. Our racing potential is reasonably good."

"This year the commission removed the three and five-pound allowances previously granted the B.C.-bred. We wanted to encourage entries from outside the province. And we thought the B.C. horse was good enough to hold his own in any company. This has proven correct."

"The commission, through the support of the attorney-general's office, has achieved some success in its first year, but there is still a great deal of work to be accomplished."

"First is the matter of better facilities for the fans, such as the $2,000,000 clubhouse and grandstand planned for Landsdowne Park."

"Second," McConnell continued, "is the proper conduct of the racing show. We are also blessed with many fine officials, and working on behalf of the commission is Clay Puett, one of the most knowledgeable horsemen in the business."

"The Eye-in-the-Sky camera, the film patrol, the patrol judges on the course and the urine and saliva tests make racing one of the most honest sports in the world today."

"Of course, there is always somebody endeavoring to beat the regulations. But the odds against him being successful are really great."

What about the 21 1/2 per cent take on pari-mutuels?

"Back in 1948," McConnell replied, "the then provincial government added the 5 per cent which the federal government had placed as a wartime tax on wagering in all Canadian provinces. The provincial government of today is now studying this pari-mutuel setup and I prefer not to comment further on it."

(Here's the "take" breakdown: Federal government gets 1/2 of 1 per cent to cover the cost of the film patrol; the tracks get 10 1/2 per cent and the provincial government gets 10 1/2 per cent. The latter returns 1 per cent to the horsemen. Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association has submitted a brief asking the provincial government to either reduce its tax bite or increase the bonus to horsemen. The HBPA says its members must have some relief if they are to survive.)

May Be Tax Adjustments Next Season

But I had to mention that I had learned that the total take in Alberta is only 14 1/2 per cent, Saskatchewan 19, Ontario 15 1/2, and Manitoba 18 1/2.

"I am not certain of your figures," said McConnell. "But in the case of B.C., the race tracks and, particularly, the horsemen have benefitted substantially from the tax."

"Nowhere else do horsemen receive 1 per cent of the total pari-mutuel take, which, when added to their earnings, means that the minimum purse in B.C. is well over $1,200."

"On the face of it, the 21 1/2 per cent may seem exorbitant. Actually, when benefits are fully considered, it has a good deal of justification."

"Maybe, however," Ken commented, "there will be some adjustments for 1961."

Making changes in a sport as old as racing is a slow process, but McConnell indicated that the work of the commission may be more obvious next season.

"While over here," he said, "we are completely revising the rules and will submit them to the government for approval."

Who's Ready To Build Park?

This city's name has once again cropped up as a possible franchise holder in the triple "A" Pacific Coast League.

So, once again, the old puzzle is presented: "Is somebody ready to build a new baseball park?"

There is no doubt that a park is the most pressing need — apart from fans — if Victoria hopes to rejoin the ranks of professional baseball.

Victoria entered the picture Thursday at the annual PCL meeting in Portland when league president Dewey Soriano suggested Honolulu, Edmonton and Victoria as possible new sites for one of the PCL's "shaky" franchises, that being held by Sacramento Solons.

EXPANSION DUE

Soriano feels Victoria, which averaged only about 100 fans for each home game in a good semi-pro league this summer, "has good potential."

"I don't know about the Sacramento franchise," he said, "but there is going to be an expansion soon and Victoria has 175,000 people within a 30-mile radius."

"Of course," he added, "you need a new ball park. The one there now just isn't suitable." Royal Athletic Park — the baseball centre in past years — would certainly not suit an AAA team.

There was speculation, however, that some persons are anxious to build an elaborate new plant on the B.C. Agricultural Association property at Colwood.

Such a plant was also mentioned prominently last year, Arthur H. Cox, city businessman whose name was linked with a proposed Colwood sports centre last year, left for Vancouver this morning on personal business and was not available for comment.

Ian McCaul, secretary-manager of the BCAGA, said his group "is definitely interested in any such undertaking."

McCaul added, however, he was not able to comment on the baseball picture.

Regardless of what steps have already been taken, it seems unlikely that Victoria would be able to enter the PCL before 1962.

Welcome Delayed

NANAIMO—Malfunction of a jet engine delayed the arrival of Nanaimo's lacrosse team Friday by eight hours and forced cancellation of an official welcome.

The western Canadian senior lacrosse champions were defeated four games to one in their best-of-seven national final with Port Credit Sailors for the Mann Cup.

City officials and citizens had planned a welcome at the ferry dock, a parade and a special public banquet to honor the team.

The banquet was re-scheduled for 6:30 tonight.

Lions Will Trade Exclusive Rights For Lower Rental

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions said Friday they'll accept a new contract for use of Empire Stadium without exclusive rights for professional football, providing the landlord, Pacific National Exhibition, will reduce rental charges by one-third.

The Pacific National Exhibition immediately said such a reduction is totally unacceptable.

The tenant and landlord gave their views at separate press conferences in the first public airing of negotiations between the Western Interprovincial Football Union team and the PNE for renewal of a contract under which Lions have occupied the Stadium since 1954.

IT'S POSSIBLE Negotiations have been snagged over the possibility of an American Football League franchise for Vancouver bringing a stadium that would share Empire Stadium with Lions.

This possibility seemed quite remote Friday, however. PNE president Dr. Jack Berry said the only possible request he's had for use of the publicly-owned stadium has come from Lions, who had an exclusive-use clause in previous contracts, preventing any other pro football club from operating there. The club does share the stadium with any other type of activity the PNE wishes to allow.

Lion president Ralph Henderson, releasing a statement mailed to members and season-ticket holders, said Lions have not demanded renewal of the exclusive-use clause, but have said if it is dropped there must be compensation in the form of a reduction of rental to 10 per cent from the present 15, based on gross gate receipts.

This would represent about $4,000 a game on the basis of the $12,000 to $14,000 average rental now paid.

The PNE said this proposal is totally unacceptable and un-

Marg Retains Oak Bay Title

Margaret Todd is becoming quite accustomed to polishing up those golf trophies.

For the fourth straight year she'll be doing the honors on the trophy emblematic of club supremacy at Victoria Golf Club. Mrs. Todd, who first won the trophy in 1940, defeated Mrs. H. G. Mearns, 4 and 3, in the finals this week.

Mrs. S. A. Maddocks captured consolation honors by defeating Mrs. C. Chapman, 2 and 1, while flight winners were Mrs. G. F. Dunn, Mrs. J. A. Wilson and Mrs. G. H. Simmons.

PPCLI Shots Dominate Army Squad

EDMONTON (CP)—Most of the members of the Canadian army Bisley team for 1961 will be from the 1st Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry stationed at Victoria, B.C., western command headquarters announced Friday.

They are: Team captain Lieutenant E. M. Canfield; Lt. H. A. Pankratz; Sgt. E. Zwolak; Cpl. R. W. Ellis; L.Cpl. F. G. Tenta; Privates A. D. Dubois, R. A. Gebhardt, J. W. Matthews and D. L. Moffat.

Other members are Capt. D. Renwick and Sgt. R. H. Mitchell from army headquarters, Ottawa; Capt. W. V. Hall, No. 5 Signal Squadron, Barrie, Ont.; and Sgt. Maj. C. F. Rowell of the Royal Canadian School of Infantry, Camp Borden, Ont.

Strictly a Haven For Form Players

By HAL MALONE

They were giving away money at Sandown Friday.

The philanthropy started in the first race when Whirl Glory, shortest odds of the meet at 1-3, scurried home for a $2.90 win return.

And it kept up—with one notable exception—through to the finale when the 4-5 Pro Tick churned home easily for a $3.90 payoff.

In all it was a form players' Eureka. If the favorite didn't win, the second favorite did. Mind, there were a few anxious moments when various upstart outsiders tried to stick their beaks in front in the last few jumps.

But with the collaboration of the eye-in-the-sky, public choices prevailed—even if a few hearts trembled in assorted "phew" finishes before the film negatives underlined the positive.

After Whirl Glory, winless in 18 starts, abandoned his losing habit, Keats Island, a 1-2 choice, scored her third win in 42 attempts.

BROKE SPELL A second favorite, Panjandrum, broke the spell in the third. Obviously a non-shaver, he proved to have longer whiskers than the favored Junior's Comet when they put their noses together at the finish.

Stan Shares Fifth-Round Gross Honors

ADELAIDE (CP)—Stan Leonard, Vancouver, and Australian Peter Thompson each shot a par 71 today in the fifth round of $5,100 nine-hole course professional golf competition, but the Canadian still trails in the over-all standing.

Mike Souchak of the United States had 72 and South Africa's Gary Player 78 on the Kooyonga links.

The four now go to Geelong where they play the sixth round. Aggregate 90-hole scores are Thompson 347, Player 354, Souchak 357, and Leonard 362.

ON THE ALLEYS

Nipp Came Close To Double Bonus

By MICHAEL ROSE

An offer at Gibson's Bowladrome was revised somewhat recently after a great performance by Sheldon Nipp.

The alleys had offered $20 to any tenpinner going over 250 and Nipp did so in his first game with nine strikes out of 12 for 257.

A second game of 244 almost gave him another $20 and a third of 206 gave a sizzling 707 series.

Gibson's now stipulate that the $50 goes to the highest game over 250 during any one week.

At Capital City Bowladrome, where championship bowling got under way today, good early-season fivepin scores started to come in this week. Mike Rodgers rolled an 843 to lead and Stan Bell had 805.

TACKLE RAMS SUNDAY

Drakes Arrange Second Exhibition

Victoria Drakes, hoping for the best from a patched-up line, resume Pacific Coast Intermediate Football Conference play Sunday in New Westminster.

Drake face winless Surrey Rams in Queen's Park with four key linemen and a stand-out defensive back on the injured list.

Doubtful for Sunday's game are tackles Joe Kurylo (bruised hip) and Pat O'Neill (fractured foot), guard Brian Gingle (bruised hip), centre Len Sloker (bruised hip), and full-back Don Hendry (pulled leg muscle).

RAMS IMPROVING Drakes defeated Rams 21-0 in their season's opener, but the Surrey squad displayed great improvement last week.

Could Be Fans Like Offence?

TORONTO (CP)—The best defence is a good offence, and it also seems the best drawing card for the Big Four Football League.

The defensive phase of the game, displayed most expertly in 1957 by Hamilton Tiger-Cats, has ended. And with its demise has come a surge in gates.

In three games, Toronto Argonauts have attracted almost 88,500 fans. Attendance figures have soared to near the 80,000 mark for four Ottawa home games; Montreal is ahead of last year's count and Hamilton, although floundering in the cellar, has attracted 70,000 in three home appearances.

League observers figure offensive play is the answer. Defensive football seldom stirs the excitement of attack.

Sugar Ray Claims Foul On Tax Bite

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ray S. "Sugar Ray" Robinson complained to the United States tax court this week that the Internal Revenue Service has improperly billed him for $332,037 additional income tax and penalties for the year 1957.

The claim grows out of his fight in that year when Carmen Basilio in New York when Robinson lost the middle-weight title.

Robinson said his contract with the International Boxing Club of New York gave him 45 per cent of the gross receipts, but provided for payment of only 40 per cent of his share in 1957.

The remaining 60 per cent, he asserted, was spread out over the following three years and so, Robinson said, could not be counted as 1957 income.

But unlike Sonny Tufts, wh

Hollywood nightmare, Tab Hunter keeps bouncing back in movies (the forthcoming "The Pleasure of His Company" and television (the new week "Tab Hunter Show").

Tab keeps his chin up on his skin thick and members of the "Who Needs Tab Hunter Club?" keep getting outside. He shrugs off the question.

mark and Goes—it's been 11 years now—with no worries about what some people think of him and with no great illusions about himself as an actor.

He's an "I Don't Care" boy who says:

"Being an actor is like being a little sick. The work is important because tomorrow or the next day there will

The new TV comedy series in which Hanter plays a fun-loving bachelor, is an abiding love story from his boy next door face from his boy next door movie roles. Earlier on TV did another about-face, starting in "The Jim Piersall Story" Climax and playing a Russian spy in "Forbidden Area"

Trying to prove himself an actor, which he did in the two performances, later means walking out of a Hollywood studio contract.

Since then his career hasn't exactly been in high gear. But he says leaving Warner Bros. studio and winning the freedom as an actor was a fateful decision.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle

SQUARE SHOOTING ON MIDWAY

To win a prize in the carnival game above, it is necessary to ring four of the bullseyes so that a line drawn to connect each of the bullseye centres will form a square. Successful attempts of two marksmen are shown on the target design. The first formed his square with the four bullseyes at top. The second intended to form his square with the four bullseyes at the bottom, but this man's first shot went wild, hitting one bullseye too high. However, by altering his plan, this contestant formed a slightly larger square.

How many different ways are there of forming a square in four shots on the target shown?

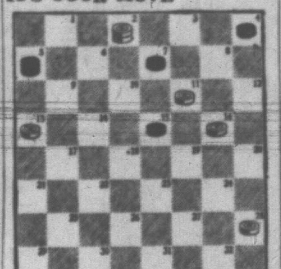

Answer: There are twenty-one ways of forming a square in four shots.

THIS IS A SNAP

"Your picture," said the photographer, "in this handsome frame will be just $12. But if you prefer to take it in a frame costing only one-half as much as this one, the price will be just $10." What was the price of the photo without a frame?

Answer: 22 figures to be 55

IT'S YOUR MOVE

Long time checker star Millard Hopper contends there's not much use in prolonging a checker game when you can win it in a few moves.

Hopper "sees" a finish to the contest above, for instance, in just three plays.

Can you determine how Hopper would play to win?

It's White's turn first, moving up the board. Hopper's solution is given below, if you need it.

Answer: 11-12, 12-13, 13-14, 14-15, 15-16, 16-17, 17-18, 18-19, 19-20, 20-21, 21-22, 22-23, 23-24, 24-25, 25-26, 26-27, 27-28, 28-29, 29-30, 30-31, 31-32, 32-33, 33-34, 34-35, 35-36, 36-37, 37-38, PARIS — A year ago we wrote about our secretary Ursula and the problem she had trying to get married. It seemed that because Ursula was Swiss and her husband French, the French government was making it very difficult for her to get the required permissions.

But Ursula is a determined girl and finally after knocking down all the high hurdles that the French functionaries put in her way, she did get married and as happens, once in a while after such a move, Ursula is now with child.

There is probably no country in the world that respects a pregnant woman more than France, and after all her trouble trying to get married, the French government has done a complete about face and has indicated it is delighted that she is going to have a baby—a French boy, of course.

When Ursula went down to the town hall to declare her pregnancy the same man who threw her out a year ago when she wanted to get married now smiled, stuck out his hand and said, "Congratulations."

He then left his window and escorted her into the social security room, where somebody immediately brought her a chair.

Behind the counter, interviewing pregnant women, were five people instead of the usual two that a counter this size in a government office usually holds. All five employees smiled and talked very softly.

When Ursula went up to the counter and revealed she was pregnant the clerk said "How wonderful! You must get a complete medical check-up, an x-ray, a Wasserman test and a dental checkup. But do not be alarmed. The government pays for all of it, and you will also be given $21 for being pregnant. We will send you advice and little slips of paper. When your doctor signs them you will get more money, and in your sixth month we will give you $40 and when the baby is born another $20.

Besides all the money Ursula was informed she was also entitled to a carte de priorité. A priority card in France is given to war invalids, blind people and pregnant women. It entitles Ursula to a seat on the subway and the right to get on a bus before anybody else. She doesn't have to stand in line in post offices, railroad stations and automobile shows. Department stores also give priority to pregnant women so they won't get tired waiting.

She also has priority crossing a street and French drivers must stop when they see her. This is only theoretical because no pregnant woman has ever dared to use this priority.

Once Ursula has her child she can have her priority card renewed for six months on the theory that she must still be tired; also that she is in a hurry to get back to her little baby.

Since the French are determined to increase their population they have set up all kinds of safeguards to encourage women to have babies. One is that now that Ursula has declared to us officially that she is pregnant we cannot fire her. No employer can fire a pregnant woman.

By law we have to give her six weeks maternity leave with pay before she has the baby and eight weeks after and then we have to take her back whether we want to or not. (We do.)

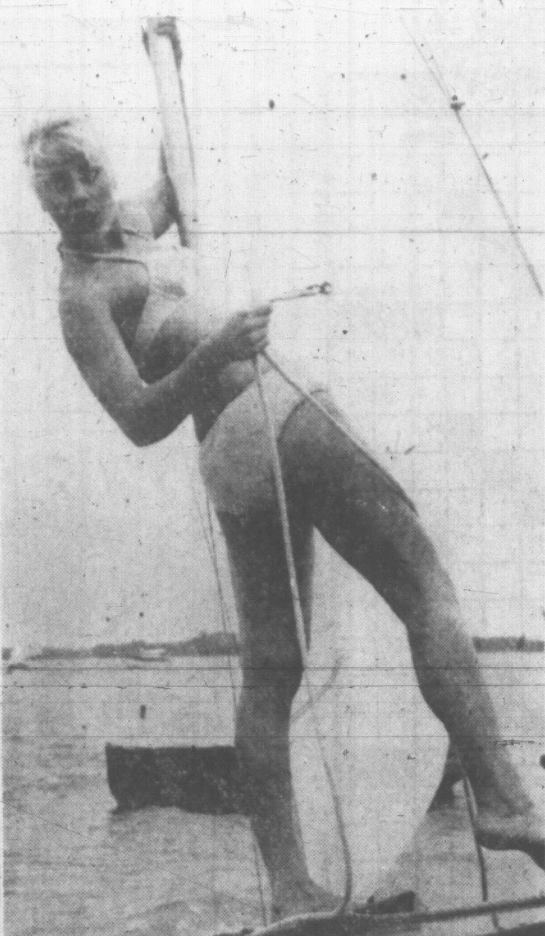

The rights of the boss during a woman's pregnancy in France are kept to a minimum. If Ursula gets sick while we're dictating to her she can go home and we still have to pay her. If she makes mistakes typing we must hold our tongue so as not to upset her or the baby and if she comes in late we have to smile and think of France.

We were so upset by the responsibility of having a pregnant secretary that we went down to the social security office to make sure everything Ursula told us was true.

The chief of the bureau confirmed everything. "Can't I even scream at her when I get mad?" we asked.

The woman behind the desk looked at us in horror and said "You wouldn't dare!"

And to open the Christmas shopping season the day after Thanksgiving, another airline, Lufthansa, has scheduled a shopping tour to such cities as Frankfurt, Vienna, Copenhagen and Rome.

Floating School Of Art

Passengers joining the Matson liner Mariposa on her historic call at Vancouver Monday before proceeding to San Francisco, Los Angeles and the South Seas, may return home as artists, if they wish.

Portrait painter and teacher, Vincenzo Fodera, will be aboard to conduct a complimentary art course for both advanced amateurs and beginners.

Ports of call are Papeete, Tahiti; Auckland, New Zealand; Sydney, Australia; Suva, Fiji; Pago Pago, Samoa and Honolulu, Hawaii. At all ports the fledgling artists will scatter to sketch, coming together en route to the next port for constructive criticism and to add finishing touches under Vincenzo's guidance.

Toward the end of the cruise, students will learn how to mount or frame their works and how best to exhibit and even sell them. There will also be an art show aboard ship, with prizes, for the best efforts.

THE $180,000 QUESTION

Water Bombers Good But Are They Worth It?

The Martin Mars water-bombers made a spectacular debut as a forest fire-fighting weapon in B.C. this summer and to the men in the tinder-dry woods the lumbering aircraft was priceless.

Now, however, is a time for reassessment of the big plane stationed at Sproat Lake on Vancouver Island.

Forest Industries Flying Tankers Limited, which converted the wartime flying boat at a cost of about $60,000 for the fire-fighting tanker, must decide whether its worth justifies conversion of three other planes.

The Mars is capable of scooping up 30 to 35 tons of water from a lake or ocean without landing in a matter of 25 seconds, speeding to a fire at 130 to 140 knots and dumping its full-load in 3 1/2 seconds. It is flexible in that one to four tanks of water can be dumped individually or simultaneously.

Opposition to the Mars comes from those who feel the Avenger aircraft is more effective than the dispersed drop of the Mars which covers an area 200 by 600 feet. But Air Vice-Marshal L. F. Stevenson, managing director of FIFT, says this is like comparing the rifle to the shotgun.

The advantage of the Mars drop, he says, is that it brackets the fire, minimizes the chance of a miss, and creates an envelope of high relative humidity, stopping or retarding spread of the fire until subsequent loads of water can be applied to extinguish it.

COSTS BIG FACTOR
In the final analysis, however, costs will be the deciding factor. Here, as in action, the Martin Mars shines. The Avenger, making one drop an hour can do so at a cost of 33.3 cents a gallon and 8.3 cents a gallon when four drops an hour are made. The Mars, carrying three tanks of water, are 35.9 and 8.9 cents a gallon and with a full four-tank load of 6,800 gallons of water the cost is 23.5 and 5.9 cents a gallon.

In brief, the Martin Mars can do the job cheaper and better, but, does this warrant an expenditure of $180,000 to convert the other three planes? This is the problem facing FIFT.

ISLAND NEWS BRIEFS
Parking Report Due Next Month
NANAIMO—City council will have a full report on Nanaimo's parking program by mid-October. Gerald Hodge, a town planner from University of B.C., completed a study this week on behalf of the advisory planning commission.

Personal interviews with motorists as well as post-cards filled out by drivers will give added information. DUNCAN—Dr. Albert Vey of Victoria and companion John Daniels were fined $10 in court here Friday for fishing in a closed area of Cowichan Bay.

Dr. Vey pleaded guilty through his friend. He was absent because he was performing an operation. Magistrate A. C. Sutton had fined Dr. Vey $25, but lowered the fine when he decided the error the pair had made was "technical."

DUNCAN—Sea Cadets of the Admiral Mainguy Corps, based at Maple Bay, will continue a door-to-door canvass in Duncan, Crofton, Chemainus and Lake Cowichan tonight. Money raised through the drive will be used to defray the cost of insurance coverage, repairs and maintenance to the barracks and for completion of a lean-to for winter storage.

DUNCAN—Eric Robinson has resigned as secretary of Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce. A Chemainus resident, Mr. Robinson was appointed secretary last winter. Mrs. M. Smith has been appointed acting secretary and will be on duty at the chamber office-tourist bureau Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Chamber directors will meet next week to consider applications for the position, a permanent and full-time one.

NANAIMO—RCMP are looking for two men who have duped Central Vancouver Island merchants into cashing worthless cheques valued at more than $800. The men cashed cheques made out to a non-existent firm, the Hendrickson Logging Co.

COURTENAY—Victoria painter Adam Grant Cunningham in court here Friday was sentenced to four months in jail for passing worthless cheques at two local firms, one for $80 and another for $100. Restitution of the amounts was made.

Cunningham faces similar charges at Port Alberni.

Sooke River Fishing Ban

SOOKE—Closure of sports fishing by angling or trolling in tidal waters of the Sooke River will be effective from midnight Sunday until further notice.

The federal fisheries ban will be in effect from the mouth of Sooke Harbor to the point upstream where Demaniel Creek joins the river.

The move was made to protect the run of spring and coho salmon.

At the same time the fisheries department announced that net fishing will be resumed in Juan de Fuca Strait at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Aid Refusal For Jobless Under Probe

NANAIMO—The carpenters and joiners local here has formed a committee to investigate reports that the social welfare department is refusing unemployed workers benefits and suggesting they sell their homes.

Union members also charge the department is refusing to assist persons involved in construction or speculative building with borrowed money.

2,000 Visitors

CAMPBELL RIVER—More than 2,000 visitors attended the open house Thursday at the Elk Falls pulp and paper mill of Crown Zellerbach Co.

The company will award a cash prize for the best essay written on the open house by a Campbell River high school student.

Parksville Dog Show

PARKSVILLE—A dog show and obedience trials will be held here Sunday in the Community Hall starting at 2 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Alberni Valley Kennel Club.

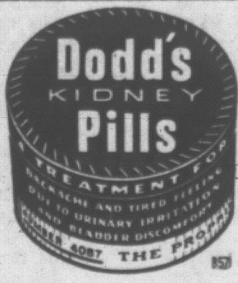

Charge Dismissed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—A charge of criminal negligence against Gilles Michaud, 21, was dismissed Friday at a preliminary hearing after Magistrate George Stewart said he could not see any jury convicting Michaud on the evidence presented.

He was charged after his 19-year-old wife, Dorothy, was killed in a traffic accident here Sept. 3.

NEW PHONE OFFICES FOR DUNCAN

DUNCAN—Construction will start here next month of a new telephone office with automatic equipment. It is part of an over-all change in Cowichan that will cost about $1,285,000. Work is scheduled to be completed in 1962.

PLANE DOWN

Freighter Grounded Near Tofino

TOFINO—The Tahsis Prince, freight and passenger ship of Northland Navigation, grounded on a sand bar at Mission Point a short distance from here in the early morning Friday.

She had just completed unloading freight. It was expected the ship would lift free on high tide.

PORT HARDY—Engine trouble Friday forced the pilot of a Cessna float plane to make a forced landing near here.

The unidentified pilot was not injured. The plane was towed to shore and later beached.

LADYSMITH—Douglas Thomas of Ladysmith was in satisfactory condition in hospital here today with injuries sustained when he was pinned under the cab of his truck which rolled on a turn. An employee of Douglas Fuel Co., he was driving a loaded wood truck down a hill on the Mayo Lumber Co. road four miles west of the Island Highway when the brakes failed.

The truck rolled twice. Thomas suffered chest and pelvic injuries.

'Backward, Turn Backward, O Time, in Your Flight'

Back. Back. One hour. That's what to do with clocks, watches and chronometers when going to bed to night. Officially Daylight Saving Time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday. DST was first started in Victoria in 1918 and has been a subject of dispute ever since. Objection most often heard is that it should be continued another month, to get in line with other provinces. The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has been in the forefront of a campaign to get the extra month. The time change here and retention of daylight saving in other provinces poses an interesting situation. On the 8.35 a.m. TCA jet flight from Toronto, passengers will arrive in Vancouver at 9.15 a.m., Pacific Standard. TCA will have a new schedule out Sunday for trans-continental flights. Planes will leave Vancouver an hour earlier and arrive in time east at the same time they did before the B.C. switch-over. But on the other hand the return to Standard time means easier understanding of Canada-U.S. ferry service timetables, and television and radio schedules. A spokesman for a travel agency here said Standard time is "definitely less confusing." Farmers also seem to favor the return to Standard. G. A. Vantreight, a large grower of flowers, fruits and vegetables, said: "I'm all for it. This means we go to work an hour later (7 a.m.) and it's not so cold and wet." A spokesman for a marina also endorsed the return to Standard. "We can work later in the shop. With people demanding service on their boats, this is a help." A mother of five school-age children, Mrs. P. A. Boyd, 3163 Harriet, said the time change meant a change in schedules for the youngsters, which called for a bit of adjustment. "It's hard to get the children going," she said from experience. Clockman E. G. Petter, 1037 Fort, has words of advice for clock turn-backers. "I'm probably putting myself out of a job," he said, "but don't push the hands of chime clocks back. Stop them for an hour. Otherwise there could be trouble with the works." And a plea has been received from the churches. One church asked that a reminder in LARGE TYPE be displayed asking people to put their clocks back. "We suffer many casualties on these time changes," a spokesman said.

RETURNING to Victoria Sunday is the $1,000,000 hydrographic survey ship William J. Stewart, bringing home four injured crewmen. Seen alongside is a small boat which could be the one which capsized in severe weather near the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands, drowning one crewman and injuring the four others who were stranded on a tiny island for 20 hours.

VICTORIAN DROWNS AS BOAT FLIPS

Ship Rushing to City With Injured Seamen

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The government survey ship William J. Stewart was hurrying to Victoria today with four crew members who were marooned for 20 hours on a tiny island at the southern end of the Queen Charlotte Islands after a shipmate was drowned.

Two of the men are injured, one suffering from head wounds. Drowned was Olav Watne, of Victoria, coxswain of the "Stewart."

The ship is expected to reach here around noon Sunday and will tie up at the Department of Transport Wharf under the Johnson Street Bridge.

She is commanded by Capt. Howard (Howie) Mathieson of 4156 Hawkes Street, Victoria. Attempts to reach the ship by radio this morning were unsuccessful. But RCAF Air-Sea Rescue reported that she was steaming south from the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

"We could not get through by radio," the duty officer reported. "Radio reception is very poor up there."

The Times attempted to phone the ship via Vancouver and Prince Rupert but the signals were not received.

Air-Sea Rescue revealed that the five crewmen set out from the William J. Stewart in a small boat Thursday and their boat capsized in a squall about five miles northwest of Cape St. James, on the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

FOUGHT WAY ASHORE

Four of the five managed to fight their way to the safety of one of the Gordon Islands—a barren huddle of rocks 10 miles north of the Cape.

Olav Watne, a native of Norway, is believed to have drowned when the small boat swamped.

Heavy seas prevented rescue attempts Thursday, but emergency supplies were dropped by an RCAF Neptune aircraft from No. 407 Squadron, Comox.

Early Friday an RCAF Canso picked up Dr. John Palmer at Queen Charlotte city and made a landing on the boiling seas off the island.

GOT TO SHIP

The doctor was transferred to the survey ship by jack-stay, but the plane was unable to approach the wind-tashed islands to pick up the men, and the weather forced the RCAF to abandon plans to send a helicopter to the scene.

However, a lifeboat from the William J. Stewart put ashore late Friday and made its way back through the pounding surf with the four stranded men.

All four were suffering from exposure and two of the men were injured from being dashed against rocks after the small boat upset. One was suffering from head wounds.

STAY ON BOARD

After treating the men, Dr. Palmer offered to have them flown back to Victoria, but all decided to stay with the ship. "The only report we have on them is that none sustained serious injuries," a spokesman for Air-Sea Rescue told The Times.

"We have not been able to obtain their names." Mrs. Robert Mellis of 3546 Maplewood phoned the Times this morning to say her husband was one of the crew and she thought he was in charge of small boats. He joined the survey ship in Victoria when she sailed for the Queen Charlottes last April.

"It is very worrying," she said. "I keep wondering if Bob is one of the injured men."

Mrs. Mellis said she will be watching for the ship Sunday afternoon.

The William J. Stewart is a highly-equipped hydrographic steamer valued at around $1,000,000. She was built on the Great Lakes about 28 years ago and has a speed of about 12 knots.

Thomas McCulloch, hydrographic surveyor for the federal government in Victoria, said he sailed on board the William Stewart every year for about five years.

"She is a highly scientific vessel," he said, "and I found the work very satisfying."

RECORD $4.6 MILLION SPENT ON FIRE 'WARS'

Cost of fighting B.C. forest fires this year totals a record $4,633,582, the B.C. Forest Service reported today. There have been more than 3,950 fires in the province and 64 new fires started during the past week. Fighting last week's outbreaks cost $17,295. Cost to quell fires up to this date in B.C. last year was $694,622.

Steller Jay... not to be confused with eastern Blue Jay.

'CHACK-CHACK-CHACK-CHACK'

Acorn-Loving Jays Wintering in City

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL, Director of the Provincial Museum

Flocks of cheeky jays have appeared in the southern Vancouver Island area recently and many have moved into the city to spend the winter.

Ordinarily these birds are not particularly numerous and are usually found in wooded districts outside the city. For some reason they are exceedingly abundant this year and despite fine weather great numbers have already appeared throughout the residential areas and also in Beacon Hill Park and the Legislative Building grounds.

The bird is unmistakable with its dark blue and black color pattern. Usually the black is confined to the head, upper breast, back and main wing feathers, with blue on the remainder of the body.

CREST RAISES

Another conspicuous feature of the plumage is a crest on the head that is often raised when the bird is excited. The call too, is distinctive being usually loud and raucous, quite unlike that of any other bird. The most common call is a "Chack-chack-chack-chack" or a "Ra-a-a-k, ra-a-a-k" sound but a variety of other noises is also made.

Like his cousin the crow, our jay is omnivorous being interested in almost anything that is edible. At this season acorns rank high in the diet with the result we see these birds working through oak trees in all parts of the city.

Our bird is properly called Steller Jay after the famed naturalist and explorer and is not to be confused with the blue jay of eastern North America.

A similar influx of Steller jays occurred two years ago but not in such large numbers. As before the present birds probably will stay the winter in the more wooded areas and depart about April to nest along the coast.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Bruce C. Plaxton, 1315 Richardson, $35, careless driving. In Oak Bay police court Friday:

William Cole, 757 St. Patrick, $15, over 30 miles an hour.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

British Columbia's top provincial foresters, R. G. McKee, deputy minister of forests, and F. S. McKinnon, chief forester, left Victoria this week for Fredericton, New Brunswick, to attend a five-day annual meeting of Canada's deputy ministers and chief foresters, next week.

The acting deputy minister of lands and mines for New Brunswick, K. B. Brown, will be host of the meeting which was last held in British Columbia in 1957.

Thieves Friday night broke into the home of Mrs. Olive Jones, 677 St. Patrick, and stole $35 in bills and silver. Oak Bay police reported today. The owner was away at the time of the break-in.

Six occupants of a car miraculously escaped injuries Friday night when their vehicle overturned and dropped 10 feet beside a CPE shed below Tyee Road.

The car landed on its roof. The occupants, all sailors from HMCS Naden, emerged from the wrecked car uninjured.

Police reported that the car skidded, spun out of control and overturned before dropping below the road.

Driver of the car was Earl Stone of Halifax. With him were Laurie Spears, Bill Currie, Jim Theriault, Austin Moore and George Hill.

Press Aide On Visit To Victoria

Robert A. Farquharson, press secretary of the Canadian Embassy in Washington, D.C., was a Victoria visitor today.

Mr. Farquharson is en route to Vancouver, where he will speak Sunday at a memorial service honoring Warren G. Harding, first American president to visit Canada.

The service, in Stanley Park, will be attended by 3,000 Klwanians.

Later, Mr. Farquharson will call on newspapers across the Prairies and in Ottawa.

Mr. Farquharson's wife is the former Maud Ferguson, well-known CBC commentator. His son, Duart Farquharson, represents F-P newspapers in London, England.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Could you please settle an argument? Was Dick Contino discovered by or made famous by Major Bowes or Horace Heidt?—B.F.C.

A. Accordionist Contino was pushed to his heights by Heidt.

Q. When was golfer Bobby Jones in his prime?—G.J.

A. When he took the U.S. Open in 1923, 1926, 1927 and 1930.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

Stanley Youson, 3440 Saanich Road, was fined $250 in city police court today for impaired driving.

A passenger in Youson's car, Mrs. Dorothy Speed, 41, of 3239 Quadra, received back injuries when she fell from the moving vehicle on Pembroke near Quadra Friday night.

She was admitted into St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

The woman fell from the car while trying to close a door that had swung open.

Windfall for City From 'Century 21'

The biggest tourist bonanza in Victoria's history is expected in 1962.

Chamber of Commerce officials, and motel and hotel owners made this prediction today in the light of mounting enthusiasm for the Century 21 Exposition in Seattle.

A United States government department has estimated 10,000,000 people from all over the globe will attend the "world fair."

Victoria will benefit, tourist officials reason, by visitors attending the fair and taking side trips here—and by thousands who will make Victoria their "headquarters" and then travel to the fair.

Hotel and motel operators throughout Greater Victoria will participate in the "Expo Lodging Service," a non-profit organization to arrange housing for visitors.

Exposition officials say accommodations in Seattle will not be able to handle the anticipated requests for reservations. They are looking to other centres in the Pacific Northwest to absorb the overflow.

Century 21 has been planned as a prospective rather than retrospective "space age fair" with exhibits already promised or being considered from 47 countries.

ALAN WILSON... president

'MEANING TO LIFE'

Jaycee Creed Broad, Simple

This is JAYCEE WEEK across Canada and members of the local branch of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have prepared a series of articles on the work and organization of the young businessmen's group. Sixth and last in the series appears below. It was written by Alan Wilson, Jaycee president, who in business life is city ticket office supervisor for Trans-Canada Air Lines.

By ALAN WILSON

The Junior Chamber of Commerce exists in 58 countries in the free world. Any creed for such a group must be broad and simple.

The first article in our creed says:

"We believe that faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life."

This is an all-embracing belief necessary to cover the many different religions of the world included in the Jaycee organization.

The Jaycee creed also says "the brotherhood of man transcends the sovereignty of nations."

In a world that becomes complex through rapid advancements in many fields, the inevitable conclusion arises that we can only survive through understanding our brother man.

IN SMALL WAY

Victoria Jaycees are trying hard to build up lines of communication between Jaycees and other groups in many countries to create in a small way international friendships and understanding.

Recording on tapes have been exchanged between the city Jaycees and other countries. Through our local radio amateurs, short-wave conversations have been held.

A great deal of correspondence has been exchanged, and pieces of art by school children in several nations circulated.

'FREE ENTERPRISE'

Jaycees also believe "economic justice can best be won by free men through free enterprise"—another article in our creed.

Training in Junior chamber activities blends in with free thinking, where young men are given the democratic opportunity to express their ideas, to try them, and even make mistakes, and learn through the experience.

Jaycees believe that "government should be of laws rather than of men."

One of the most active groups in the Junior Chamber is the government and civic affairs committee. Through this committee a keen interest is maintained in civic affairs, studying public issues, stimulating public interest through such mediums as forums, television, radio and newspapers.

TOOK CENTURIES

One of the dangers of our democracy, our government of laws, is that apathy may grow to the extent that our form of government may be in jeopardy. History has shown what can happen by a government of men who are not restricted in their authority by a constitution. It took many centuries to evolve a government of laws with the ultimate control resting with the people. Now it is a popular form of government, but it could slip away quickly if public apathy and decadence were allowed to grow.

Jaycees believe that "earth's greatest treasure lies in human personality."

It is often said that we are living in an age of materialism where success and happiness can be measured by the quantity and quality of material possessions.

A thinking person knows that real success and happiness cannot be achieved through the possession of these things, but only in the use to which they are employed for the satisfaction of human need and the development of human personality.

GREAT PRESSURE

In every activity of the Victoria Jaycees there is indeed a deep and growing appreciation for the human personality.

The last article in the Jaycee creed says: "We believe that service to humanity is the best work of life."

REAL MEANING

While the Victoria Jaycees are firstly a leadership training organization, they also carry out worthwhile community service projects.

The welfare children's Christmas party, playground development program, the clothing drive for the needy of Hong Kong, and many other projects combine to place real meaning into this part of the Jaycee creed.

FIRST TIME AWARD MADE FOR POETRY

Third-Year Student's Verse Wins Nicholas Writing Prize

Julian Reid, third-year student, has been awarded the B.C. Nicholas prize for outstanding writing at University of Victoria last year.

The $100 award is given annually by the Victoria Daily Times in memory of its former distinguished editor, the late Benjamin Charles Nicholas.

Mr. Reid's entry, a folio of verse, marks the first occasion on which the award has been made for poetry. Judges were impressed by metre and rhythm of his work, his sense of word values and the new-age touch he brought to his composition.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Reid, 322 Plaskett Place, the winner is seeking a degree in honors English, and he lists his hobbies and interests as reading and writing.

Receiving honorable mention in the contest were T. G. Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sawyer, Chilliwack, who has returned to an Arts course at University of Victoria following a year in education, and Miss Glenys Parry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Parry, 2240 Kinross Avenue, who is studying history at UBC and hopes for a career in Canada's foreign service.

Mr. Sawyer's entry was an impressive epic in verse on Canada's northland, Miss Parry's a well-conceived, short story on a concentration camp.

Judges were Mrs. Ross Napier of the Provincial Archives; Stuart Keate, Times publisher, and A. H. Stott, Times associate editor.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Rev. J. Bond Johnson, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church, said today he has set up a special section of pews for "Churchgoers Anonymous" (CA).

"Persons desiring to attend church without running the gauntlet of hand squeezers and back slappers can now enter a special 'CA entrance,'" he said. "There will be no guest registration cards to sign and no offering basket will be stuck under their noses."

WEEK-LONG ORDEAL

Victim Crawls Home

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—A Negro in his 60s lay on a hospital bed today and weakly related how he crawled for nearly one week over 10 miles of mountainous countryside after falling several hundred feet down a cliff.

While returning from a wedding Sept. 16, the man said, he slipped and plunged down a ravine.

It took him two days to clamber from the ravine. His injuries — internal and head wounds — were so bad he was unable to stand. He pulled himself yard by yard across rugged country to his home in Estcourt near here. During his ordeal he experienced extremes of heat and cold as well as pain.

It is believed he kept alive by drinking from rain puddles and eating roots and foliage.

OF VICTORIAREGULAR WEEKLY MEETING SUN-DAY, SEPTEMBER 25,

Less than two years after they went to Government House, on a morning in April, 1957, fire swept through the wooden mansion. Mrs. Ross, her husband and their staff escaped only moments before flames broke through the tinder-dry walls. Stone entrance and tower were all that remained when fire was brought under control.

Despite shock of the fire and sadness through loss of precious effects, Mrs. Ross, as honorary president of Provincial Chapter, IODE, officiated at opening ceremony of the provincial annual meeting in the Empress Hotel that same night. The Lieutenant-Governor accompanied her.

Charming manner of Phyllis Ross, evident at the first State Ball in January, 1957, soon after her husband took office, never changed throughout the five years. Thousands of visitors were received at Government House in that time.

Appearance with her husband when he officiated at events such as opening of the Legislature each year was a normal part of Mrs. Ross' busy life as Government House chatelaine. In background are Cmdr. Gar Dixon and Miss Ruth Maclean, secretaries to His Honor and Mrs. Ross during the past five years.

On occasions when her husband's old war wound necessitated cancellation of engagements, Mrs. Ross filled in for him, as in June this year when she laid cornerstone of new St. John Ambulance building on Pandora Avenue.

Even in the rush of public life, family celebrations were not forgotten. Colorful Santa Claus and reindeer, a real music box, that had been part of Christmas when Mrs. Ross' children, Brenda and John were children, was used each year on Government House table at the Yuletide.

With her husband, Mrs. Ross has shaken hands with thousands of citizens who crowded Government House gardens each year for the official garden party.

Latest picture of Mrs. Ross taken as she made final check of objets d'art that she will leave in Government House. His Honor and Mrs. Ross have given many personal gifts to ensure that Government House will remain one of the finest residences in Canada.

Two years after the disastrous fire, in the spring of 1959, the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross took up residence in the new Government House. Over-all plans, decorations and furnishings were carefully watched by the charming chatelaine and the result was a delightful blending of the best features of the former residence and many modern innovations.

A Wealth of Memories and a Host of Friends

One of the most colorful regimes in the history of Government House concludes in early October when Lieutenant-Governor Frank Mackenzie Ross completes his five-year term of office and retires to private life. Those years have been filled with exciting events, including a disastrous fire; building of new Government House, in which the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross have taken a keen personal interest, visits of royalty, state balls, invitations to a royal wedding and being received by The Queen in Buckingham Palace.

During his regime the Lieutenant-Governor and his wife have travelled continuously throughout British Columbia to take Government House to the outlying areas of the province. They have made special trips overseas to search for treasures in His Honor's "ain country" of Scotland, to bestow as gifts in the refurbishing of the new mansion. Nothing that would add to the prestige of the office has been missed by the Lieutenant-Governor and his charming wife. To do this, they have spent more than $100,000 a year of his Honor's personal fortune.

In the five years since her husband became British Columbia's 19th lieutenant-governor, Phyllis Gregory Ross has upheld the tradition established by former chatelaines. She has met each happening with charm, dignity and a smile.

When the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross leave Government House in early October they will take with them a wealth of memories, a knowledge of a work well done and a host of friends made during their term in office.

Following the fire, Mrs. Ross arranged a temporary Government House in the Empress Hotel and it was here in 1958 that Her Royal Highness the Princess Margaret stayed when she visited Victoria. In the Ross regime royal visitors have been frequent guests at Government House, culminating last year with the presence of Her Majesty the Queen and Prince Phillip.

"I could not have done it without my wife." The Lieutenant-Governor has said these words on many occasions, in public and in private. Here he invests Mrs. Ross as a Dame of the Order of St. John, at a ceremony in Government House.

Children are of special interest to Mrs. Ross, and the annual Christmas party for the orphans at Government House saw her having as much fun as the youngsters. Mrs. Ross has two grandsons of her own.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Keep Hunting Season Safe—Wear Something in Red!

By PENNY SAVER

With their women folk rushing to buy something in a purple hue this fall, men who hunt also agree that a vibrant color is just what's needed during hunting season. In their case, though, it's a "touch of red" that's called for!

Wise women will surprise hunters in their family by getting them one of the hunting caps that are now being sold in one downtown store. An imported cap that's bound to be a hit is in rich red velvet, lined with quilted satin and complete with ear flaps. This one sells at $1.95. Another, priced at $1.25, is a conventional peaked cap in red velvet and this, too, is lined with quilted satin.

A peaked cap in red twill is moderately priced at 95 cents. Any one of them would certainly help prevent hubby being mistaken for a deer when he's out in the woods!

Really warm and comfortable are the heavy wool shirts that also come in "hunters' red." These could either be worn as a shirt or as a jacket. Available in small, medium and large sizes they are well tailored with two flap pockets as front trim. These sell at $6.95.

Cotton doesn't lose its used for other shirts, priced at $2.95. Sizes range from 14½ to 17½.

Speaking of hunting reminds me of the family of six little ducklings I saw in a downtown store this week. Perky little birds were in gaily painted china and stood in a row on a handy wall spice rack. Each had a little message on its downy chest stating, "I'm allspice," "pepper," "nutmeg," "cinnamon," "salt" or "cloves." Rack and its feathered friends is priced at $1.49.

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Projects — Women's Auxiliary to the Family and Children's Service made plans for coming season at recent meeting. First project will be to sponsor the Victoria Theatre Guild play "Janus" at the Langham Court Theatre October 3. Mrs. A. Cooper was named convener of a rummage sale to be held in late October. Mrs. R. Reeve, president and Mrs. B. Y. Young will co-convene annual Festival of Decorations at the end of November.

Harvest Supper — Plans were made at meeting of St. Matthew's Ladies' Evening Guild for a harvest supper in the parish hall on Oct. 4 at 6 p.m., convener by Mrs. G. L. Levy. Collection committee for a rummage sale in the hall on Oct. 18 at 7 p.m., will be Mrs. R. McCrimmon, Mrs. K. Hvid and Mrs. J. Houston. Church rector, Rev. Angus Cameron, thanked the guild for donation of curtains for the main auditorium. Mrs. C. G. Heisterman presided.

Reservations — It was announced at meeting of Britannia Branch No. 7, Ladies' Auxiliary, that members wishing to attend the joint district council meeting in Nanaimo on Sept. 30, must let the secretary, Mrs. D. McCulloch, EV 4-7427, know. Mrs. M. Williams presided; Mrs. A. Sheret, Portland, Ore., and Mrs. D. McQueen, New Westminster, were welcomed as visitors. New members initiated were Mrs. L. R. Dobbs, Mrs. P. Krishna, Mrs. L. M. Newman and Mrs. N. McCormick. Plans were made for a birthday party on Sept. 29, coupled with a bazaar shower.

Capt. Wilfred H. Gibson and Mrs. Gibson of Prospect Lake, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Avril Nadya, to Kenneth John Comer, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Comer of Victoria. Wedding will take place on Friday, October 14 at 7:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Dr. J. L. W. McLean will officiate. (Photo by Gibson's Studio.)

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Even Though Eating 'Out' You Can Still Stay on Diet

If your job makes it necessary for you to eat lunch away from home, you will have to give thought to that meal or you will sabotage your effort to reduce, or even to hold that curve. Also, your lunch is important from a standpoint of good nutrition.

Yet it is possible to take a lunch with you which will be neither dreary or fattening. For instance, you can take tomatoes, cucumber slices, raw carrots, celery or lettuce. If you tire of these as noon-time vegetables, you can keep a bottle of low-calorie salad dressing, and a small bowl at the office and mix a salad periodically.

Melba toast is very low in calorie count. If you drink milk at noon, make it skim milk or buttermilk. You can keep powdered, fat free milk at the office, too, and mix it up in a glass. I take this on trips with me. If you like tea or coffee for lunch, keep a small box of artificial sweetening in your pocketbook or desk.

If you like cottage cheese this makes a good luncheon dish and has only 100 calories to three generous tablespoons. If you eat at a lunch counter, the same rules hold. The canned soups (all except the cream soups) are surprisingly low in calorie count. For instance, vegetable soup — 65 calories; chicken noodle — 95 calories; tomato — 75 calories; beef — 75 calories. You can ask for lettuce, mustard and pickle on your sandwich or ask for mayonnaise on the side so that you yourself can add it to your sandwich. Or, you could have a medium-sized, broiled hamburger on a roll, fresh fruit and buttermilk.

There is really no reason why eating lunch away from home should ruin your hopes for losing weight, but if you order a chocolate milk, an egg salad sandwich and end with a candy bar, that is a different and sad story.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Create Own Headlines With New Hair Style

Damaske

Many of us enjoyed sunny days and salty swims in summer but now time has come to smooth out the tossed and tumbled hairdos. Hot sun on an uncovered head did not seem to matter then. Today we shudder at our dry locks and we begin to plan for a treatment or two with rich oils to give that smooth shining look for fall and winter.

The tide is turning in hair styles. Cocoon and beehive fashions are gradually being replaced by shorter cuts with a decidedly upward movement.

The hair has a light, airy effect without a tousled look.

In Paris mannequins Chanel, Lanvin, Ricci, Cardin and Givenchy received orders to have their hair cut short.

Known in Paris as the "garcon look" this very short boyish bob with its sissy side curls takes us back to the 1920's. Of course, these very short,

The bolero bob is short, chic and on the bias. This sums up fashion's newest silhouette created by famed hair stylist Clay Crausen. He calls it "bolero" because it's young, gay and lively.

John Garrison, leading hair stylist in New York, predicts that woman's hair length will be this season, at the maximum, three inches at the ears and the nape of the neck with hair long from the crown.

close-cropped coiffures, high style in Paris, are somewhat modified for the average woman in Canada.

We follow the advice from Paris "to sharpen the scissors" but it is a softer, more femininely flattering, shortness. Fluffy bangs and fullness at the crown keep these new cuts from a mannish-bob look.

Short, severely styled hair requires the perfect features of a young Paris model. A little more hair is usually more becoming to Mrs. John Q. Public.

Evening Vows Said
In Candlelit Chapel

Candleholders from Siam, belonging to the bride's mother, held lighted candles at the marriage in HMCS Naden Chapel of Donna Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sinclair of Victoria and P.O. Norman Cameron Woodcock, RCN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Woodcock of Happy Valley. Bronze and gold chrysantheums decorated the chapel for ceremony conducted by Chaplain H. Todd.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. Her ballerina-length gown of white brocade was fashioned on empire lines with scalloped neckline, lily-point sleeves and full skirt. A seed pearl coronet held her illusion waist-length veil. Cultured pearl earrings, gift of the groom, were her only jewelry. Red roses and white carnations were in the bouquet.

Mrs. Jack Brown, Edmonton, matron of honor, and bridesmaid, Miss Gaye-Petcoff, Vancouver, wore velvet peg-skirt dresses in shades of dusty rose and powder blue. They wore coronets of carnations and carried white carnation bouquets.

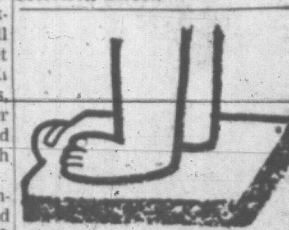

Best man was AB Jim Kalman and ushers were AB Ernie Richards, Gordon Sinclair and Douglas Wilson. All wore naval uniforms. During signing of the register, Jack Hostler, Edmonton, sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

Reception was held at the War Amputations Hall, John Petcoff, Vancouver, bride's uncle, proposed the toast. Special guests were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Petcoff.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride wore an avocado green sheath style dress of wool. Her accessories were in rust tone. Corsage of Talisman roses completed the ensemble.

After a honeymoon in the B.C. interior, couple are now making their home at 1505 Morrison Street.

Attract the Youth of Under-Privileged Countries to Combat the Russian Threat

World domination through economic means is Nikita Khrushchev's main objective, said Sir Robert Hadow, guest speaker at meeting of the Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel, Friday.

In a fast-moving analysis of the Russian premier's speech at United Nations Assembly Friday morning he described it as a "bucolic string of words, lasting two and a half hours and heavily weighted with cleverly baited hooks."

"Being a Communist, atheist and materialist, Khrushchev has no wish for a world destroyed by an intercontinental ballistic war. If such a war started—it would be by a mistake. He realizes that an economic victory will be slower but it would also be inexorable."

Only way to combat this threat of economic domination is for all free nations to band together to attract the youth of Africa, Asia and other underprivileged regions, urged Sir Robert.

"This will take self-sacrifice and a willingness, on our part to carry a much greater tax load. I would like to see a pooling of resources in the money markets of London, Paris, New York and Toronto for this work."

"Russia spends many millions in educating students from such areas. In Moscow University. Dividends are enormous. Through the work of only 200 Chinese students educated in Moscow in 1955 the Communists were able to conquer."

Sir Robert urged that the British Commonwealth combine with all free nations in free trade, unrestricted by curbs. And he quoted the six European nation alliance as an example. Pliable economic groups such as this are the answer to trade threats from a Soviet bloc, made strong by internal subversion, he emphasized.

Greatest danger in Africa today came from the "land hunger" of the Africans, said the speaker.

"When the white man went to that continent fifty years ago there were no roads, no language or writing—they had not even been introduced to the wheel."

"Now they wish to take over all the white man has built up. We must find means

Vistor to Russia Very Impressed By Politeness Shown in Moscow

By PAT DUFOUR

The Russians are polite. So says Mrs. D. E. Alcorn after a week's stay in Moscow and Leningrad.

"We were there (Moscow) just after the Powers trial. Our Russian guide, passing the building, merely said quietly, 'That's where Mr. Powers was tried.' That's the only mention we ever heard of the trial."

"Of course, we weren't going to ask too many leading questions for, to complicate matters, there was a ruckus going on at that time regarding a tourist who'd been caught taking pictures of a naval vessel without permission!"

Visit to Russia occurred during a six-week jaunt taken by Mr. and Mrs. Alcorn around England, Ireland, continental Europe and the Scandinavian countries as well as Russia.

YEARLY CLEAN-UP

Struck by the soft shades of yellow, green and blue that colored Russia's houses and public buildings, Mrs. Alcorn was told that it's routine to paint all buildings every year. "Results," she says, "are breath-taking!"

Although Russian women, when seen on the street, use very little color in their clothing, keeping mainly to black and navy, they, too, have their "dress-up" occasions.

"We went to the opera in Leningrad and I amused myself by trying to guess which were tourists and which were Russians. It was almost impossible to tell!"

Hair styling, too, does not go completely unnoticed. "Most Russian women wear their hair long and drawn back in a bun but the smart ones have really gone all out for the bouffant style."

In contrast, Mrs. Alcorn noted that the beehive hairdo was worn by almost every woman she saw in the Scandinavian countries.

She tells how, during a theatre intermission in Leningrad, she caused a "near panic" with her Italian toe shoes. "Women kept flocking around and pointing at my feet. My husband wanted to know if I'd speared them with my stiletto heels!"

PREFER TO WORK

The traveller agreed that most married women work in Russia, from choice, she believed. "Our guide was a married woman with a small boy. Although a school teacher by profession, she said she had gone back to work because living quarters were so small. It was much more pleasant to work."

To combat the lack of apartments the Russians had built many skyscrapers but these were now being forsaken for five-storey buildings. "They found that the new buildings were far more practical, being easier and more economical to build. In these new buildings, they're now insisting that no apartment should be shared by more than one family."

Language barrier prevented the Alcorns from exploring too much on their own. However, they did strike up a conversation with two opera singers in Moscow while waiting for a taxi.

"We just couldn't flag a taxi down and the two artists introduced us to the underground. After taking a good look at it—we changed our minds and decided to stick to taxis."

Although Russian living quarters are small, in contrast, hotel facilities are "out of this world."

"Our suite in the Moscow hotel was positively palatial. Too bad we didn't know anyone. What a party we could have had there!"

Tea Welcomes Exchange Teachers From Overseas

Fall activities of the Exchange Teachers Club (Victoria Branch of the League of Empire) started recently with a tea at the Hollywood Crescent home of Mrs. M. Nairne, where members of the club executive met to honor teachers who have come from the British Isles on exchange this year, and to welcome home the local teachers who spent last year abroad.

Exchanges included Miss Maureen Dumbrell at George Jay School; Miss Aurea Read, Cloverdale School, and Miss Mary Scott, John Stubbs School. Taking their places overseas this year are Mrs. W. F. Holdridge, Miss K. G. Fowell and Mr. R. Harris.

Returning to Victoria were Miss K. Youdall from England and George Grant who, with Mrs. Grant and their three children, spent the past year in Scotland.

Another guest at the tea was Mrs. A. Batten, the former Miss Lois Lewis, who came to Victoria last year on exchange to Oak Bay Senior High and whose marriage to Dr. Batten took place in July.

Planning activities for club in the coming months are Mrs. B. Matthews, the new president; Miss Evelyn Macqueen, past president; Miss M. Gaudin, Miss N. Pittard, Mrs. Nairne, Mrs. A. Strutt, Mrs. M. Fisher, Miss N. Styan, Miss G. Turvey and Mrs. W. MacKenzie.

First meeting will take place in Oak Bay United Church Hall, next Friday, when exchange and Commonwealth teachers will be guests of the club.

Gifts in Umbrella

Corsages of pink carnations were presented to Miss Jo-Anne Thomson and her mother, Mrs. George Thomson, at a shower given by the bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. John Gordon, at her home on Queenswood Drive. Gifts were concealed in a gaily decorated umbrella. Co-hostess was Miss Sharon Wood. Guests were Mrs. J. A. McColm, Mrs. Donald Miller, Mrs. M. P. Paine, Mrs. La Verne Corke, Mrs. William Doren, Mrs. Stanley Thompson and the Misses Judy Paine, Gale Williams, Dorothy Luten and Beverley Sled.

St. Joseph's Graduate Marries in Nelson Church

A wedding of interest in Victoria and the British Columbia interior, took place in Blessed Sacrament Church at Nelson recently, when Rochelle Mary Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Arnot of Nelson and John James Pearce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Pearce of Victoria, exchanged vows.

Nuptial mass was conducted by Rev. Dominic Langi. Bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's School of Nursing.

White organza over satin formed the floor-length bridal gown, enhanced with a V neckline and wide collar applique with lace and pearl sequins. Lace was repeated on the dropped waistline and full hoop skirt. A circlet of pearls in leaf design held her fingertip veil. Her pearl jewelry was a gift of the groom, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, sweetpeas and gypsophelia. She was given in marriage by her father.

Attendants, Miss Gail LePage, Miss Annette Lord and Miss Leona Pearce wore dresses in three shades of blue with matching picture hats. They wore gold chain and pearl necklets, gift of the bride, and carried nosegays of pastel-toned daisies.

Heirloom Bracelets Worn by Bride At Fairfield Church Wedding

Gold bracelets belonging to the groom's grandmother were "something borrowed" for Inga Birgitta Maria Swahn at her marriage to Brian Donald Vestrup in Fairfield United Church today. White floating nylon sheer, posed over satin, formed her floor-length gown. Imported lace accented the waistline and formed the collar of the basque bodice. Tiers of rose point lace highlighted the back of the full hooped skirt. A tiara of seed pearls and crystals held the fingertip veil of silk illusion. Red roses and fern were in her bouquet.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Swahn of Shawanigan Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Vestrup of Victoria. Mr. Swahn gave his daughter in marriage.

Chrysanthemums in white and pastel tones decorated the church. Rev. H. K. Johnston officiated and Mrs. Margaret Keifer sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

Silk organza gown in Du Barry rose shade was worn by maid of honor, Miss Pat Grant. Delicate blue nylon chiffon over taffeta was worn by bridesmaid, Miss Birgitta Lofstrand, and 10-year-old Patsy Hill was junior bridesmaid in a party dress of pale yellow nylon chiffon over taffeta. White and shrimp toned carnations were carried by Miss Grant, while bridesmaids had white and blue carnations in their cascade bouquets. All wore matching headpieces.

Ray Vestrup, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Ray Watkins and David Saurley.

Karl Lofstrand proposed the toast to his niece at a reception in Club Tango. Pink roses and candles flanked the three-tier wedding cake that centred the head table. Gladioli, roses and sweetpeas decorated the guests' tables.

For a honeymoon trip to Seattle and other United States cities the new Mrs. Vestrup chose a fitted suit in Dior blue cashmere, highlighted with a pink collar. Accessories were in tone. Newlyweds will make their new home in Alberni.

Two Ships Lost, He Quits

HALIFAX (CP)—Capt. John (Pegleg) MacKenzie was on the bridge of the Panamanian freighter Pink Star when it was sunk by a German torpedo off Iceland 19 years ago Thursday.

The 74-year-old skipper was again in command when a 60-foot fishing dragger with the same name burst into flames off here Thursday.

The coincidence was enough to make him decide to retire from a sea career that started aboard sailing vessels when he was a teenager.

"This was my last boat, I'm not going to get another," said Capt. MacKenzie at his home at nearby Tufts Cove after he and his two crew members were rescued.

The fire, which spread quickly from a generator in the engine room, burned the

ON WOODEN LEG

Capt. MacKenzie suffered minor burns when he remained on board after ordering the others into a dory. He made distress calls on two radio frequencies and got into the dory himself, hobbling on a wooden leg.

The burning ship was spotted by naval aircraft which remained overhead and messaged the transport department cutter Brant. The Brant picked up the three fishermen and brought them here.

The skipper was thankful for a smooth rescue operation.

With the first Pink Star it had been different.

When the 6,850-ton freighter, which he had commanded early in the Second World War, was hit by a torpedo there was no immediate help at hand. Capt. MacKenzie remained in the icy water for five hours before being picked up.

Capt. MacKenzie lost his leg in an accident aboard the five-masted sailing vessel Salene nearly 50 years ago. He escaped from the same ship in 1919 when it burned off the Indian Ocean.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

A panel discussion to debate amendments to the Engineering Profession Act will be held at a Victoria-Engineers Association dinner Wednesday at 6.30 in Holyrood House.

Under discussion will be: Is the government of engineering under existing law satisfactory, and, should a separate body be formed to deal with the economic welfare of engineers.

Panelists will include members and officers of the association.

Capital Region Planning Board director, Brahm Wiesman will address a meeting of the Victoria Conservation Council next Thursday at 8 p.m. in the City Hall council chambers.

Winners of the weekly tournament of Victoria Allstars Duplicate Bridge Club:

1. Simon Marinker, Gordon Rodger; 2. Tony Marsh, Otto Leesment; 3. Harry Rolis, Frank Artlett; 4. Mrs. Sam Duprau; 5. Laura Tingley, Walt Allen.

Officials of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind today disclaimed any connection with private canvasses in the city by persons soliciting funds for the blind. The only local appeal made by the CNIB is through the Community Chest, and only Chest canvassers are authorized to solicit donations.

Fall meeting of the View Royal Garden Club next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the community hall will be addressed by horticulturist D. G. F. Barton. He will speak on primroses and newer varieties of Michaelmas daisies.

The choppy, freezing waters of Juan de Fuca Strait are still taking their toll of swimmers.

Latest victim of the treacherous waters is Victorian Doug Rivette who slipped, unaided, into the water Thursday on his way to Port Angeles.

Three hours later and five miles south of Trial Island he was pulled from the 46 degree ocean suffering from leg cramp.

FOR CONGO PEACE

Mobutu Trying Reconciliation

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Military strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu today made a bid to "impose a reconciliation" on feuding President Joseph Kasavubu and sometime-premier Patrice Lumumba in an effort to end strife in this young republic.

Mobutu, who seized power and suspended Lumumba, Kasavubu and Joseph Ileo, a rival premier named by the president, called on both Kasavubu and Lumumba today.

After nearly an hour inside Lumumba's house, he told reporters:

"I have heard both points of view and shall try to impose a reconciliation."

Inflamed by Drugs

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—President-Premier Moise Tshombe charged today that armed bands of his political opponents inflamed by drugs and liquor have spread "terror" through secessionist Katanga Province.

He appealed for calm and warned that his government will take stern repressive measures against "agents" from abroad and their followers.

Nasser Goes Visiting

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic met today with Lebanese Premier Saeb Salam to start a day of conferences that included Nikita Khrushchev.

At noon Nasser sped a few blocks up Fifth Avenue to the Yugoslav mission to see President Tito.

Later he was going to the Waldorf-Astoria to see the left-leaning Nkrumah who has followed to some extent the Communist line on Africa.

An Egyptian delegation spokesman said Nasser would speed out to Long Island this afternoon for a conference with Khrushchev who went to the country this morning with the Communist leaders of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Ukraine, Byelorussia and Bulgaria.

NEW YORK (AP)—Police received a roundabout report today that a former Hungarian freedom fighter is planning to try to assassinate Soviet Premier Khrushchev and a Hungarian Communist leader Janos Kadar.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India was flying toward New York today for a 10-day visit that will include talks with President Eisenhower and a UN speech.

LONDON (UPI)—Red China which ignored Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's summitry decision earlier this month is keeping an icy silence on his activities at the United Nations.

RED FISHING BOATS NEAR NATO'S NAVY

PARIS (Reuters)—Soviet fishing vessels were sighted near allied naval forces which assembled earlier this week in the Atlantic for the Atlantic Pact exercise code-named "Fallex YP," a NATO communique announced today.

Some of the Russian trawlers "were observed to have antennas of sizes and shapes unusual for ships of their type," the communique said.

Never rest your elbows on the table before you. "We've never heard of such piffing stupidity," snapped one of the girls to reporters. "Gross impertinence," said William Davies, an official of the union to which the girls belong. "What difference does it make if you cross your legs?" asked another girl. "I will sit as I please."

Dief First To Answer K's Blast

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker flies to New York late today to deliver the West's first major reply to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and meet with President Eisenhower and Premier Harold Macmillan.

The Canadian leader will address the star-studded United Nations General Assembly Monday, the first speech by a Western head of government following Khrushchev's attack on the UN administration.

Tuesday he will meet with both Eisenhower and Macmillan.

TO VISIT NEHRU

A spokesman added that Diefenbaker also would see several other world leaders. He indicated Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana would be among those on whom he would call.

It seemed certain the Canadian leader, like other Western executives, would ignore Khrushchev.

He spent most of the day working on his UN speech in his Parliament Hill office. He devoted more than 12 hours Friday to the address, which he is said to consider one of the most important of his career.

EAGER TO ANSWER

Monday's speech will be his second before the world forum. In his previous appearance in September, 1957, he offered to open Canada's Arctic regions to reciprocal inspection against surprise attack, an offer he is expected to renew this time.

Sources indicated the prime minister was eager to answer the Khrushchev speech. They also hinted that he had no "bombshell" to deliver. But would concentrate on a plea to the Soviet Union to resume the Geneva disarmament talks, possibly under a neutral chairman.

Diefenbaker will share Monday's spotlight with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro who is reported ready to speak for four hours. He will follow the Canadian leader to the Assembly podium.

HIS LUCK SHORT-LIVED

The High Cost of Wealth

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Frank Zeigler, like others the world over, dreamed of winning the Irish Sweepstakes.

On June 1, a horse named St. Paddy won $140,000 for Zeigler, a 63-year-old janitor at The Oakland Tribune.

He was overwhelmed—and a little wary.

So Zeigler went to Superior Court and told the judge that he had been a drinker for many years, had little education and was frankly afraid

LEADS PARTY

King Hussein will leave for New York next week to head the Jordan delegation to the current United Nations General Assembly session.

Cuba Gives Recognition To Red China

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba announced today the establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist China and North Korea.

The announcement came after a cabinet session in which Prime Minister Fidel Castro telephoned by long-distance telephone from New York, where he is attending the United Nations General Assembly.

Cuba is the first nation in the western hemisphere to recognize Red China. Castro previously had signed a trade pact with Peking.

The Castro regime also voted into law a commercial agreement with Yugoslavia.

Castro's swing toward closer relations with the Communist bloc began last May when he re-established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, which had been broken off during the regime of Fulgencio Batista. At that time he also raised the Czechoslovak legation to the higher rank of embassy.

The cabinet decreed recognition of Peking regime during a marathon session that ended early today.

Two Cypriots Shot

NICOSIA (AP)—One Cypriot was shot dead and another wounded in two separate incidents in Cyprus Friday night and early today.

Fear Move Aimed At Destruction Of World Group

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Western diplomats speculated today on whether Soviet Premier Khrushchev's appetite for power in Africa will cause him to tear out the heart of the United Nations Organization.

United States, British and Canadian leaders all struck the same note: It appeared Khrushchev was trying to destroy the UN when he ripped into it Friday in a speech keyed for the ears of emerging and underdeveloped countries.

Khrushchev brought deep gloom to the UN when he said that UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold had been the tool of western countries by his actions in the Congo crisis.

Ambassador James Wadsworth said "the crisis consists of an attempt to destroy the office and the very structure of the secretary-general and the secretariat, and through it, to destroy the United Nations."

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter hopes Khrushchev will push his United Nations revamping proposals to a showdown, it was learned, because he is confident the Soviet premier will meet with a stinging defeat if he does.

Khrushchev implied that Hammarskjold should be fired and he went much further by stating that the secretary-general's post should be abolished.

It should be replaced, he said, by a three-man executive drawn from the three sectors into which he divided the world—the West, the Communist bloc and neutralist states.

He proposed that the UN headquarters be moved from New York.

Plan Seen to Win Control of Africa

Diplomats saw deep significance in that Khrushchev devoted one-third of his ponderous 18,000-word address to a denunciation of colonialism, causing Western spokesmen to retort that Russia is the greatest imperialist power in the world today—perhaps in history.

His call for a quick burial of all things colonial was regarded as clear notice of his hopes of winning Africa—which has placed 13 new members in the 96-member UN—to Communist influence.

Some sources felt Khrushchev was trying mainly to needle the U.S. when he said:

"The question arises of whether or not thought should be given to the choice of another locale for the United Nations headquarters... Switzerland or Austria might be such a place, for example... I can declare in all responsibility that if it should be considered expedient to house the United Nations headquarters in the Soviet Union, we guarantee the best possible conditions for its work."

Spy Plane Case To Be Aired

In other developments Friday:

1. The assembly's steering committee voted for a new debate by the assembly on the U.S. U-2 spy plane and RB-47 plane incidents. The U.S. did not oppose the discussion although it said the Soviet allegations were false; voted for debate on the Hungarian oppression of 1956. Twelve countries, including Canada, were for the debate, four against and there were four abstentions.

armament expert, told correspondents they could find nothing significantly new in Khrushchev's disarmament proposals.

The foreign chief declared: "I was very much disappointed in Mr. Khrushchev's speech because it was utterly destructive, particularly unfortunate after the helpful speech made by President Eisenhower."

"His accusations about the 10-nation disarmament committee, in which Canada took part, were ridiculous, because the Eastern five walked out without even listening to new U.S. proposals."

"I think the best thing now would be if non-nuclear UN members made it clear in the assembly that negotiations on disarmament must resume and resume quickly."

"I was very disappointed, but I wouldn't be surprised if he overplayed his hand again. I felt his attack on Hammarskjold and the secretariat was the most destructive part of his speech. It made me wonder whether he was out to destroy the UN."

"It would be a tragedy for humanity if he did. I don't think he will... The UN is Irish."

TIMES' EDITOR OFF ON TOUR OF U.K.

Bruce Hutchison, the Times' award-winning editor, is off on another fact-finding tour—this time to report to Victoria readers on the booming U.K. economy.

Mr. Hutchison left by plane this week, following an invitation from the British Information Services. He will tour England, Wales and Scotland.

The overseas assignment will last a month. En route to the U.K., Mr. Hutchison will stop over in Ottawa for a few days to confer with political leaders, economists and other news sources familiar to him from a long tour of duty in the nation's capital.

OFFICE CHAIR ORDERS I RK GIRLS

'I'll Sit as I Please'

LONDON (AP)—A British government department this week got around to replacing 1,068 old-fashioned office chairs, some of them dating back to the reign of Queen Victoria.

Victoria died in 1901, but the chairs lived on. Their replacement has started a row. In issuing the new chairs to the London headquarters of the Post Office Savings Bank, an official also issued sitting instructions to the girls who use them. Stressed were two golden rules for the chairborne: Never cross your legs and keep both feet together on the floor.

Never rest your elbows on the table before you. "We've never heard of such piffing stupidity," snapped one of the girls to reporters. "Gross impertinence," said William Davies, an official of the union to which the girls belong. "What difference does it make if you cross your legs?" asked another girl. "I will sit as I please."

RALLIES SHORT-LIVED

Resistance Low, Investors Hit

By JOHN PICTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Resistance was low on the Toronto stock market this week in the wake of the beatings that investors took on Wall Street.

The decline started Monday with the arrival of Premier Khrushchev in New York. Toronto industrialists dropped more than seven points. New York dropped 15 points to take industrialists below the resistance mark of 600—and other sections were sure to follow.

There were one or two half-hearted rallies, based mainly on domestic stocks, but they were short-lived, and Toronto industrialists closed the week with a drop of 9.87 at 484.07. Base metals were off 3.66 at 151.09 and western oils dropped 2.46 at 84.68.

But golds came up with a Midas touch, gaining 2.69 at 87.10.

Since the drop in United States gold reserves, speculators were out in force on prospects of the U.S. government buying Canadian gold and, on Friday, Dome, Giant Yellowknife and McIntyre-Porcupine all chalked up substantial gains.

Western oils were in the doldrums throughout the week. Index changes this week at Montreal Banks down 3.8 at 264.2, combined down 2.9 at 223.2, utilities down 1.3 at 141.2, industrialists down 3.8 at 264.2, papers down 9.8 at 414.4, and golds down 1.64 at 71.22.

There was no domestic news to take traders' minds off the sharp declines in New York and the diplomatic flirtations at the United Nations, and all industrial groups moved lower.

Among refining oils, the only stock to score a gain was Canadian Oil, expected to have its Alberta refinery ready for production in October.

Steels, pipelines and papers all showed marked losses, with International Paper hitting a new low for the year. Mines saw coppers, nickel, iron ore and uranium stocks move into lower gear, while

'Backward, Turn Backward, O Time, in Your Flight'

Back. Back. One hour. That's what to do with clocks, watches and chronometers when going to bed tonight.

Officially Daylight Saving Time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday. DST was first started in Victoria in 1918 and has been a subject of dispute ever since.

Objection most often heard

is that it should be continued another month, to get in line with other provinces. The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has been in the forefront of a campaign to get the extra month.

The time change here and retention of daylight saving in other provinces poses an interesting situation.

On the 8.35 a.m. TCA jet flight from Toronto, passengers will arrive in Vancouver at 9.15 a.m., Pacific Standard.

TCA will have a new schedule out Sunday for transcontinental flights.

Planes will leave Vancouver an hour earlier and arrive in the east at the same time they did before the B.C. switch-over.

But on the other hand the return to Standard time means easier understanding of Canada-U.S. ferry service timetables, and television and radio schedules.

A spokesman for a travel agency here said Standard time is "definitely less confusing."

Farmers also seem to favor the return to Standard.

G. A. Vantreight, a large grower of flowers, fruits and vegetables, said: "I'm all for it. This means we go to work an hour later (7 a.m.) and its not so cold and wet."

A spokesman for a marina also endorsed the return to Standard.

"We can work later in the shop. With people demanding service on their boats, this is a help."

A mother of five school-age children, Mrs. P. A. Boyd, 3163 Harriet, said the time change meant a change in schedules for the youngsters, which called for a bit of adjustment.

"It's hard to get the children going," she said from experience.

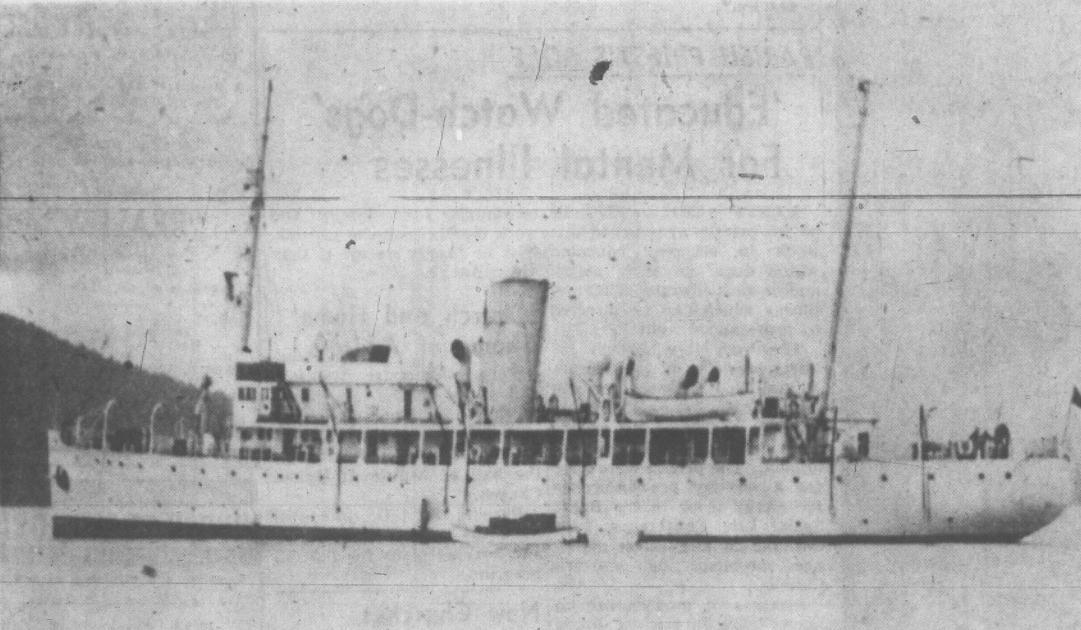

Clockman E. G. Petter, 1037 Fort, has words of advice for clock turn-backers.

"I'm probably putting myself out of a job," he said, "but don't push the hands of chime clocks back. Stop them for an hour. Otherwise there could be trouble with the works."

And a plea has been received from the churches. One church asked that a reminder in LARGE TYPE be displayed asking people to put their clocks back.

"We suffer many casualties on these time changes," a spokesman said.

RETURNING to Victoria Sunday is the $1,000,000 hydrographic survey ship William J. Stewart, bringing home four injured crewmen. Seen alongside is a small boat which could be the one which capsized in severe weather near the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands, drowning one crewman and injuring the four others who were stranded on a tiny island for 20 hours.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1960—PAGE 19

VICTORIAN DROWNS AS BOAT FLIPS

Ship Rushing to City With Injured Seamen

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The government survey ship William J. Stewart was hurrying to Victoria today with four crew members who were marooned for 20 hours on a tiny island at the southern end of the Queen Charlotte Islands after a shipmate was drowned.

Two of the men were injured, one suffering from head wounds. Drowned was Olav Watne, of Victoria, coxswain of the "Stewart."

She is commanded by Capt. Howard (Howie) Mathieson of 4156 Hawkes Street, Victoria.

Attempts to reach the ship by radio this morning were unsuccessful. But RCAF Air-Sea Rescue reported that she was steaming south from the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

"We could not get through by radio," the duty officer reported. "Radio reception is very poor up there."

The Times attempted to phone the ship via Vancouver and Prince Rupert but the signals were not received.

Air-Sea Rescue revealed that the five crewmen set out from the William J. Stewart in a small boat Thursday and their boat capsized in a squall about five miles northwest of Cape St. James, on the southern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

FOUGHT WAY ASHORE

Four of the five managed to fight their way to the safety of one of the Gordon Islands, a barren huddle of rocks 10 miles north of the Cape.

Olav Watne, a native of Norway, is believed to have drowned when the small boat swamped.

Heavy seas prevented rescue attempts Thursday, but emergency supplies were dropped by an RCAF Neptune aircraft from No. 407 Squadron, Comox.

Early Friday an RCAF Canoe picked up Dr. John Palmer at Queen Charlotte city and made a landing on the boiling seas off the island.

GOT TO SHIP

The doctor was transferred to the survey ship by jack-stay, but the plane was unable to approach the wind-lashed islands to pick up the men.

However, a lifeboat from the William J. Stewart put ashore late Friday and made its way back through the pounding surf with the four stranded men.

All four were suffering from exposure and two of the men were injured from being dashed against rocks after the small boat upset. One was suffering from head wounds.

STAY ON BOARD

"After treating the men, Dr. Palmer offered to have them flown back to Victoria, but all decided to stay with the ship."

"The only report we have on them is that none sustained serious injuries," a spokesman for Air-Sea Rescue told The Times.

"We have not been able to obtain their names."

Mrs. Robert Mellis of 3546 Maplewood phoned The Times this morning to say her husband was one of the crew and she thought he was in charge of small boats. He joined the survey ship in Victoria when she sailed for the Queen Charlottes last April.

"It is very worrying," she said. "I keep wondering if Bob is one of the injured men."

Mrs. Mellis said she will be watching for the ship Sunday afternoon.

The William J. Stewart is a highly-equipped hydrographic steamer valued at around $1,000,000. She was built on the Great Lakes about 28 years ago and has a speed of about 12 knots.

Thomas McCulloch, hydrographic surveyor for the federal government in Victoria, said he sailed on board the William Stewart every year for about five years.

"She is a highly scientific vessel," he said, "and I found the work very satisfying."

RECORD $4.6 MILLION SPENT ON FIRE 'WARS'

Cost of fighting B.C. forest fires this year totals a record $4,633,582, the B.C. Forest Service reported today.

There have been more than 3,950 fires in the province and 64 new fires started during the past week.

Fighting last week's outbreaks cost $17,205.

Cost to quell fires up to this date in B.C. last year was $694,627.

Stellar Jay ... not to be confused with eastern Blue Jay.

'CHACK-CHACK-CHACK'

Acorn-Loving Jays Wintering in City

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL
Director of the Provincial Museum

Flocks of cheeky jays have appeared in the southern Vancouver Island area recently and many have moved into the city to spend the winter.

Ordinarily these birds are not particularly numerous and are usually found in wooded districts outside the city. For some reason they are exceedingly abundant this year and despite fine weather great numbers have already appeared throughout the residential areas and also in Beacon Hill Park and the Legislative Building grounds.

The bird is unmistakable with its dark blue and black color pattern. Usually the black is confined to the head, upper breast, back and main wing feathers, with blue on the remainder of the body.

CREST RAISES

Another conspicuous feature of the plumage is a crest on the head that is often raised when the bird is excited. The call too, is distinctive being usually loud and raucous, quite unlike that of any other bird. The most common call is a "Chack-chack-chack-chack" or a "Ra-a-a-k, ra-a-a-k" sound but a variety of other noises is also made.

Like his cousin the crow, our jay is omnivorous being interested in almost anything that is edible. At this season acorns rank high in the diet with the result we see these birds working through oak trees in all parts of the city.

Our bird is properly called Stellar jay after the famed naturalist and explorer and is not to be confused with the blue jay of eastern North America.

A similar influx of Stellar jays occurred two years ago but not in such large numbers. As before the present birds probably will stay the winter in the more wooded areas and depart about April to nest along the coast.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Bruce C. Plaxton, 1315 Richardson, $35, careless driving.

In Oak Bay police court Friday: William Cole, 757 St. Patrick, $15, over 30 miles an hour.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

British Columbia's top provincial foresters, R. G. McKee, deputy minister of forests, and F. S. McKinnon, chief forester, left Victoria this week for Fredericton, New Brunswick, to attend a five-day annual meeting of Canada's deputy ministers and chief foresters, next week.

The acting deputy minister of lands and mines for New Brunswick, K. B. Brown, will be host of the meeting which was last held in British Columbia in 1957.

Thieves Friday night broke into the home of Mrs. Olive Jones, 677 St. Patrick, and stole $35 in bills and silver. Oak Bay police reported today. The owner was away at the time of the break-in.

Six occupants of a car miraculously escaped injuries Friday night when their vehicle overturned and dropped 10 feet beside a CPE shed below Tyee Road.

The car landed on its roof. The occupants, all sailors from HMCS Naden, emerged from the wrecked car uninjured.

Police reported that the car skidded, spun out of control and overturned before dropping below the road.

Press Aide On Visit To Victoria

Robert A. Farquharson, press secretary of the Canadian Embassy in Washington, D.C., was a Victoria visitor today.

Mr. Farquharson is en route to Vancouver, where he will speak Sunday at a memorial service honoring Warren G. Harding, first American president to visit Canada.

The service, in Stanley Park, will be attended by 3,000 Kiwanians.

Later, Mr. Farquharson will call on newspapers across the Prairies and in Ottawa.

Mr. Farquharson's wife is the former Maud Ferguson, well-known CBC commentator. His son, Duart Farquharson, represents F-P newspapers in London, England.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Could you please settle an argument? Was Dick Contino discovered by or made famous by Major Bowes or Horace Heidt?—B.F.C.

A. Accordionist Contino was pushed to his heights by Heidt.

Q. When was golfer Bobby Jones in his prime?—G.J.

A. When he took the U.S. Open in 1923, 1926, 1927 and 1930.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times," Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

Stanley Youson, 3440 Saanich Road, was fined $250 in city police court today for impaired driving.

A passenger in Youson's car, Mrs. Dorothy Speed, 41, of 3220 Quadra, received back injuries when she fell from the moving vehicle on Pembroke near Quadra Friday night.

She was admitted into St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment.

The woman fell from the car while trying to close a door that had swung open.

Windfall for City From 'Century 21'

The biggest tourist bonanza in Victoria's history is expected in 1962.

Chamber of Commerce officials, and motel and hotel owners made this prediction today in the light of mounting enthusiasm for the Century 21 Exposition in Seattle.

A United States government department has estimated 10,000,000 people from all over the globe will attend the "world fair."

Victoria will benefit, tourist officials reason, by visitors attending the fair and taking side trips here—and by thousands who will make Victoria their "headquarters" and then travel to the fair.

Hotel and motel operators throughout Greater Victoria will participate in the "Expo Lodging Service," a non-profit organization to arrange housing for visitors.

OVERFLOW

Exposition officials say accommodations in Seattle will not be able to handle the anticipated requests for reservations. They are looking to other centres in the Pacific Northwest to absorb the overflow.

Century 21 has been planned as a prospective rather than retrospective "space age fair" with exhibits already promised or being considered from 47 countries.

Arrangements are now being discussed to produce a B.C. brochure to be included with all literature sent out from exposition headquarters.

Transportation from the heart of Seattle to the 74-acre grounds a mile out will be by a specially constructed $3,500,000 monorail.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce secretary John Copinger is enthusiastic about the city's prospects for increased tourist trade.

"We should even do better next year," he said, "and I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see an increase of 25 to 30 per cent in 1962."

"Accommodation problems in Seattle will definitely be a point in our favor. Rather than fight the mobs around there they'll come to Victoria to stay and make day or overnight trips to the exposition."

Arrangements are now being discussed to produce a B.C. brochure to be included with all literature sent out from exposition headquarters.

Jaycee Creed Broad, Simple

This is JAYCEE WEEK across Canada and members of the local branch of the Junior Chamber of Commerce have prepared a series of articles on the work and organization of the young businessmen's group. Sixth and last in the series appears below. It was written by Alan Wilson, Jaycee president, who in business life is city ticket office supervisor for Trans-Canada Air Lines.

By ALAN WILSON

The Junior Chamber of Commerce exists in 58 countries in the free world. Any creed for such a group must be broad and simple.

The first article in our creed says:

"We believe that faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life."

This is an all-embracing belief necessary to cover the many different religions of the world included in the Jaycee organization.

The Jaycee creed also says "the brotherhood of man transcends the sovereignty of nations."

In a world that becomes complex through rapid advancements in many fields, the inevitable conclusion arises that we can only survive through understanding our brother man.

IN SMALL WAY

Victoria Jaycees are trying hard to build up lines of communication between Jaycees and other groups in many countries to create in a small way international friendships and understanding.

Recording on tapes have been exchanged between the city Jaycees and other countries. Through our local radio amateurs, short-wave conversations have been held.

A great deal of correspondence has been exchanged, and pieces of art by school children in several nations circulated.

FREE ENTERPRISE

Jaycees also believe "economic justice can best be won by free men through free enterprise"—another article in our creed.

Training in Junior chamber activities blends in with free thinking, where young men are given the democratic opportunity to express their ideas, to try them, and even make mistakes, and learn through the experience.

Jaycees believe that "government should be of laws rather than of men."

While the Victoria Jaycees are firstly a leadership training organization, they also carry out worthwhile community service projects.

The welfare children's Christmas party, playground development program, the clothing drive for the needy of Hong Kong, and many other projects combine to place real meaning into this part of the Jaycee creed.

FIRST TIME AWARD MADE FOR POETRY

Third-Year Student's Verse Wins Nicholas Writing Prize

Julian Reid, third-year student, has been awarded the B.C. Nicholas prize for outstanding writing, at University of Victoria last year.

The $100 award is given annually by the Victoria Daily Times in memory of its former distinguished editor, the late Benjamin Charles Nicholas.

Mr. Reid's entry, a folio of verse, marks the first occasion on which the award has been made for poetry. Judges were impressed by metre and rhythm of his work, his sense of word values and the new-age touch he brought to his composition.

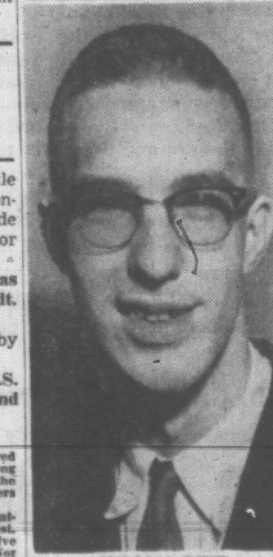

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Reid, 322 Plaskett Place, the winner is seeking a degree in honors English, and he lists his hobbies and interests as reading and writing.

Receiving honorable mention in the contest were T. G. Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sawyer, Chilliwack, who has returned to an Arts course at University of Victoria following a year in education, and Miss Glenys Parry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Parry, 2240 Kinross Avenue, who is studying history at UBC and hopes for a career in Canada's foreign service.

Mr. Sawyer's entry was an impressive epic in verse on Canada's northland, Miss Parry's a well-conceived, short story on a concentration camp.

Dief First To Answer K's Blast

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister John Diefenbaker flies to New York late today to deliver the West's first major reply to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and meet with President Eisenhower and Premier Harold Macmillan.

The Canadian leader will address the star-studded United Nations General Assembly Monday, the first speech by a Western head of government following Khrushchev's attack on the UN administration.

Tuesday he will meet with both Eisenhower and Macmillan.

TO VISIT NEHRU

A spokesman added that Diefenbaker also would see several other world leaders. He indicated Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana would be among those on whom he would call.

It seemed certain the Canadian leader, like other Western executives, would ignore Khrushchev.

He spent most of the day working on his UN speech in his Parliament Hill office. He devoted more than 12 hours Friday to the address, which he is said to consider one of the most important of his career.

EAGER TO ANSWER

Monday's speech will be his second before the world forum. In his previous appearance in September, 1957, he offered to open Canada's Arctic regions to reciprocal inspection against surprise attack, an offer he is expected to renew this time.

Sources indicated the prime minister was eager to answer the Khrushchev speech. They also hinted that he had no "bombshell" to deliver. But would concentrate on a plea to the Soviet Union to resume the Geneva disarmament talks, possibly under a neutral chairman.

Diefenbaker will share Monday's spotlight with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro who is reported ready to speak for four hours. He will follow the Canadian leader to the Assembly podium.

FINAL BULLETINS

7 Hurt in Ladysmith Car Collision

Two persons were severely injured and five others shaken up early today in a head-on collision of two cars at Ladysmith.

Victor Wood, North Burnaby, the most severely injured, is in satisfactory condition in Ladysmith Hospital. Gerald Kruks, the only other person in the car, was uninjured.

Sharon Taylor, Duncan, a passenger in a car driven by Beverley Merritt, Duncan, suffered a broken leg and other injuries.

She was transferred to St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria and is in good condition. Minor cuts and bruises were suffered by Terry Barney and Linda O'Connell, Duncan, and Maurice de Clarke, Ladysmith.

U.K. Girl Sets New Mark for 880 Run

WELWYN GARDEN CITY, England (AP) — Joy Jordan set a world record for the women's 880 yards with a time of two minutes 6.1 seconds today.

That was half a second faster than the listed world mark, set by Nina Otkalenka of Russia with a time in Moscow in June, 1956, of 2:06.06.

Roughies, Argos Nearer Big 4 Finals

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — The Ottawa Rough Riders rolled up three second-quarter touchdowns for an early 24-7 lead, then hung on grimly to score a 35-21 victory over Hamilton Tiger Cats at Civic Stadium today.

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Toronto Argonauts today pounded out a 21-9 victory over the sluggish Montreal Alouettes to record their sixth win in eight starts and remain in first place in the Big Four.

Mobutu Trying Reconciliation

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — Military strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu today made a bid to "impose a reconciliation" on feuding President Joseph Kasavubu and sometime-premier Patrice Lumumba in an effort to end strife in this young republic.

Mobutu, who seized power and suspended Lumumba, Kasavubu and Joseph Ileo, a rival premier named by the president, called on both Kasavubu and Lumumba today.

After nearly an hour inside Lumumba's house, he told reporters:

Inflamed by Drugs

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — President Premier Moise Tshombe charged today that armed bands of his political opponents inflamed by drugs and "horror" have spread "terror" through secessionist Katanga Province.

He appealed for calm and warned that his government will take stern repressive measures against "agents" from abroad and their followers.

Nasser Goes Visiting

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic met today with Lebanese Premier Saeb Salam to start a day of conferences that included Nikita Khrushchev.

At noon Nasser sped a few blocks up Fifth Avenue to the Yugoslav mission to see President Tito.

Later he was going to the Waldorf-Astoria to see the left-leaning Nkrumah who has followed to some extent the Communist line on Africa.

An Egyptian delegation spokesman said Nasser would speed out to Long Island this afternoon for a conference with Khrushchev who went to the country this morning with the Communist leaders of Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Ukraine, Byelorussia and Bulgaria.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India was flying toward New York today for a 10-day visit that will include talks with President Eisenhower and a UN speech.

Pirates, St. Louis Losers

Pittsburgh baseball fans are waiting at least another day to celebrate a National League pennant flag. Their beloved Pirates bowed today to the Milwaukee Braves 4 to 2.

But they took consolation in the fact that they lost no ground as second-running St. Louis Cardinals also lost, to the Chicago Cubs, by a score of 5 to 4.

Milwaukee scored four runs in the first inning off pitcher Bob Friend and never looked back although they were out-hit by the Bucs who pounded winner Lou Burdette for 11 hits to the winners' 7.

Pittsburgh's two runs came from circuit clouts by Clemente and Stuart while Adcock hit a four-bagger for Milwaukee.

Cuba Gives Recognition To Red China

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba announced today the establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist China and North Korea.

The announcement came after a cabinet session in which Prime Minister Fidel Castro participated by long-distance telephone from New York, where he is attending the United Nations General Assembly.

Cuba is the first nation in the western hemisphere to recognize Red China. Castro previously had signed a trade pact with Peking.

The Castro regime also voted into law a commercial agreement with Yugoslavia.

Castro's swing toward closer relations with the Communist bloc began last May when he re-established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, which had been broken off during the regime of Fulgencio Batista. At that time he also raised the Czechoslovak legation to the higher rank of embassy.

The cabinet decreed recognition of Peking regime during a marathon session that ended early today.

West Girds To Defend UN From K

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Western diplomats speculated today on whether Soviet Premier Khrushchev's appetite for power in Africa will cause him to tear out the heart of the United Nations Organization.

United States, British and Canadian leaders all struck the same note: It appeared Khrushchev was trying to destroy the UN when he ripped into it Friday in a speech keyed for the ears of emerging and underdeveloped countries.

Khrushchev brought deep gloom to the UN when he said that UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold had been the tool of western countries by his actions in the Congo crisis.

Ambassador James Wadsworth said "the crisis consists of an attempt to destroy the office and the very structure of the secretary-general and the secretariat, and through it, to destroy the United Nations."

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter hopes Khrushchev will push his United Nations revamping proposals to a showdown, it was learned, because he is confident the Soviet premier will meet with a stinging defeat if he does.

Khrushchev implied that Hammarskjold should be fired and he went much further by stating that the secretary-general's post should be abolished.

It should be replaced, he said, by a three-man executive drawn from the three sectors into which he divided the world — the West, the Communist bloc and neutralist states.

He proposed that the UN headquarters be moved from New York.

Plan Seen to Win Control of Africa

Diplomats saw deep significance in that Khrushchev devoted one-third of his ponderous 18,000-word address to a denunciation of colonialism, causing Western spokesmen to remark that Russia is the greatest imperialist power in the world today—perhaps in history.

His call for a quick burial of all things colonial was regarded as clear notice of his hopes of winning Africa—which has placed 13 new members in the 96-member UN—to Communist influence.

Some sources felt Khrushchev was trying mainly to needle the U.S. when he said: "The question arises of whether or not thought should be given to the choice of another locale for the United Nations headquarters... Switzerland or Austria might be such a place, for example... I can declare in all responsibility that if it should be considered expedient to house the United Nations headquarters in the Soviet Union, we guarantee the best possible conditions for its work."

Spy Plane Case To Be Aired

In other developments Friday:

1. The assembly's steering committee voted for a new debate by the assembly on the U.S. U-2 spy plane and RB-47 plane incidents. The U.S. did not oppose the discussion although it said the Soviet allegations were false; voted for debate on the Hungarian oppression of 1956. Twelve countries, including Canada, were for the debate, four against and there were four abstentions.

Canada's External Affairs Minister Green and Lt. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canada's disarmament expert, told correspondents they could find nothing significantly new in Khrushchev's disarmament proposals.

The foreign chief declared: "I was very much disappointed in Mr. Khrushchev's speech because it was utterly destructive, particularly unfortunate after the helpful speech made by President Eisenhower."

"His accusations about the 10-nation disarmament committee, in which Canada took part, were ridiculous, because the Eastern five walked out without even listening to new U.S. proposals.

"I think the best thing now would be if non-nuclear UN members made it clear in the assembly that negotiations on disarmament must resume and resume quickly."

"I was very disappointed, but I wouldn't be surprised if he overplayed his hand again. I felt his attack on Hammarskjold and the secretariat was the most destructive part of his speech. It made me wonder whether he was out to destroy the UN."

"It would be a tragedy for humanity if he did. I don't think he will... The UN is

Plagues Hit Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — The World Health Organization Friday reported outbreaks of bubonic plague, scarlet fever, malaria, and sleeping sickness in the Congo but said none was of epidemic proportions and there was no immediate danger of epidemic.

TIMES' EDITOR OFF ON TOUR OF U.K.

Bruce Hutchison, the Times' award-winning editor, is off on another fact-finding tour—this time to report to Victoria readers on the booming U.K. economy.

Mr. Hutchison left by plane this week, following an invitation from the British Information Services. He will tour England, Wales and Scotland.

The overseas assignment will last a month. En route to the U.K., Mr. Hutchison will stop over in Ottawa for a few days to confer with political leaders, economists and other news sources familiar to him from a long tour of duty in the nation's capital.

Thing th' Nations hev t' decide is how far apart y' kin git an' still be called United.

Even with one o' Mister Castro's cigars, Mister Khrushchev wouldn't look like Churchill.

Takes all kinds t' make a world, they say. But must some of 'em be THAT kind?
